SWEDEY HIGGINS HURT BY TRUCK

MAGGIE KERN, MOREHOUSE GIRL, SLIGHTLY INJURED.

CAPE GIRARDEAU TRUCK PLOWS INTO PARTY AT BUFFINGTON.

"Swedey" Higgins, 20 years old, received a fractured back, and Miss Margaret Kern, 19, of Morehouse, was slightly hurt Thursday night about 7:15 o'clock when a "Bamby bread" truck driven by V. L. Swindell of Cape Girardeau, struck a new Foard roaster near Buffington, west of Morehouse on Highway 60.

Walter Layton of the Home Oil Company, East Prairie and Presley Foley, 17 years old, owner of the car, also of East Prairie, escaped with slight injuries.

Higgins called Fred Beal, sheriff of Stoddard County immediately after the accident and gave his assistance to officers in attempting to straighten out the matter.

The injured were brought to Sikeston and received treatment at the Emergency Hospital. This morning, Dr. Kendig stated that the condition of Higgins was satisfactory. Miss Kern was discharged from the hospital.

Stories of the accident conflict. Both parties mutualy accused the the other of being intoxicated. Charges of this nature were not pressed, however, and no arrests had been made by Saturday evening.

Higgins and his party insist that they had stopped the Ford roadster facing east on Highway 60 and were repairing a puncture when the bread truck hit the front part of the auto.

Mr. Swindell stated to a Standard representative Saturday that he could not explain the accident in any other terms other than that he probably "dozed off" and thus rammed into the small parked car. "I had been on the road since three o'clock that morning and was getting pretty sleepy by seven o'clock that night" he stated. He denied having taken a drink.

The injured lad lives at Star Pine, Ky., and was visiting friends in East Prairie.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON GAINS 2055 BY CENSUS

Sikeston city has shown the largest increase of any city in its class in all Southeast Missouri, Located as we are at the cross roads of two concrete highways and the center of one of the best agricultural sections to be found anywhere, there is no reason why Sikeston will not continue to grow.

Mars. C. L. Blanton, Sr., is quite ill from Trench Mouth that she has been afflicted with for the past week. She is confined to her bed and suffers greatly.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Hulick, who have been visiting in the W. C. Bowman home, were entertained in the P. A. Bowman home Saturday evening. They left for their home Sunday morning.

SIKESTON DEFEATS OSCEOLA SUNDAY

ARKANSAW INDIANS FAILED TO SHOW OLD-TIME VIM.

SIKESTON GOES TO THE INDIAN VILLIAGE NEXT SUNDAY.

The Sikseton baseball season started with a rush Sunday afternoon at Fairground Park, when the locals turned the Osceola Braves invasion into a rout with a score of 11-3. In the process of collecting the eleven markers, Tom Malone's men collected sixteen hits and drove "Happy Foreman, Indian hurler from the mound. Tuffy Crain's circuit smash in the eighth turned the trick, and 'Happy" gave way to "Red" Michie, formerly a local moundsman.

Webb Burk, Memphis right hander, who made his first debut Sunday on the mound for Sikeston, allowed the invaders five scattered hits good for three tallies, none of them earned.

The "kid" as he was immediately nicknamed on the Sikeston bench, seemed to have plenty of "stuff" and speed. Moltedo, leadoff man for Osceola, and rated as one of the most clever hitters, faced Burk five times during the afternoon and batted a straight zero. Fleitz of the visitors alone managed to connect for a double, the remaining four hits being singles.

Neither team displayed midseason form Sunday. Fielding was uniformly raged with Sikeston holding the margin on errors. The locals managed to muff seven to five for Osceola. While the old standby, Smetzer, is credited with "booting" three chances, he redeemed himself by making two spectacular out-of-territory foul catches.

Neither team scored in the first frame. In the second, however, Haman, Bowman and Shorty Crain connected for safeties. Mow rolled out, Foreman to B. Ralph, and Bowman was thrown out at second. Bark scored Crain with a single, Haman having crossed the platter on an error by Howerton. Burk was thrown out at second by Foreman, but two tallies had been scored.

Osceola went out in 1-2-3 order in the second.

The locals had their big inning in the third, with Dowdy, and Tuffy Crain singled and advanced on a perfect bunt laid down the third baseline by Gore. Smetzer singled to score Dowdy and Crain, and Gore added his talley when Knox bungled a blow. Haman popped out to B Ralph at first.

Bowman singled, but was out at second on a roller to third laid down by Shorty Crain. Mow rolled down to first and was out unassisted by B. Ralph.

An error at short gave the visitors their first break of the afternoon with Foreman the lucky man. He was out of the next play, however, when Fleitz rolled down to Crain at short. Tarver singled, and Fleitz gave the visitors their first counter, when Knox rolled down to second. Tarver added another on Gore's error, and Howerton popped out to Haman at first. The Indians did not score again until the eighth when Fleitz crossed the plate after his long double to left.

Burk added one to the Sikeston total in the fourth. He doubled and advanced to third on Foreman's error, and was scored by Dowdy, who lined one out for a single.

Again in the eighth, the locals broke away on a scoring spree, adding four tallies to bring the total to

Sikeston has a right to feel proud of the increase in her population of 2055 during the past ten years. Many small cities, and most of the towns and villages, have lost in that time which shows that but few will be left on the map in the next ten years. Sikeston will hold what she has and will make another substantial gain when the census of 1940 is taken though we will likely be among those who have passed on.

After all, when business is good everywhere, when folks have money, when crops are bringing good returns it is easy to collect money. When times are N. S. G., despite propaganda to the contrary, it is not so easy to make the mare go round.

We are glad to hear that Sikeston is to get a postoffice building, but we would like for someone to show us just where the government is to profit by the investment. The building will cost $70,000. At four per cent interest the same money would earn $2800 annually and it is certain that the best building in Sikeston of the size necessary for a postoffice could be rented for $200 per month. In a rented building the government would look to the landlord for repairs, but under the proposed plan the postoffice department must bear this expense also, which will run the annual cost well in excess of $3000. Building a few federal buildings over the country to bring about artificial prosperity will prove expensive in the end.

The above from the Jackson Cash Book is true. It has been the policy of the Government for many years to erect postoffice buildings in a limited number of small cities in order that the tax payers might at least have a building that they could point to with pride and see where a small amount of their taxes were used Large cities, rivers and harbors, the Army and the Navy get large appropriations, but small cities only get to pay their taxes, hence get small buildings occasionally as a monument to a great and growing country.

Agriculture has won its first great victory in the adjustment of differences between the Senate and House tariff bills. The House bill put a tariff of $1.75 a ton on grindstones; the Senate bill put grindstones on the free list; the conference committee voted with the Senate. So, grindstones will be admitted free of any duty whatever. Just think of that when you go out on a summer's day to sharpen the bush-hook to clean out that nasty fence-row on the back lot. No need to spare the stone; no excuse to turn off the boy-power because it threatens to run down; no toll to pay to keep alive an infant grindstone industry. And remember this important action of our legislators, touching as it does every farm when in debate some fellow makes the sweeping assertion that our government never does anything for our farmers. This great saving on grindstones will keep many a farmer from the poorhouse and put comfort and luxuries in countless farm homes. Our enthusiasm runs out of bounds; we lack words to celebrate this: agriculture's first great victory in the final roll-call on the tariff!—Daily Livestock Reporter.

A teacher in south Missouri accused by a preacher of helping a man drink a quart of whiskey then acting affectionate and crazy towards him must have consumed a different brand of liquor from that drunk by a La Plata man which is said to have caused him to go home and beat up his wife, the mother of an eight-day old baby. A different brand of teacher and preacher from the La Plata type is also shown in the case. The preacher boasts that he is a reformed drunkard and attacks the character of the teacher who then sues him for libel. Also, there exists a different form of morals, today, from that of a generation ago according to the pleadings of the teacher's attorney, who stated that "you can't judge the language of libel in this day by the standards of Puritan. To act affectionate and crazy towards a man is no more than most girls do now every mating season. Before prohibition it was considered pretty bad for a woman to take a drink, but it is common nowadays for women to drink. That's the advancement of civilization. That is, if there is any civilization left". It will probably be found, however, that juries are no different in south Missouri than they are here, and that their decision will follow the line of old-fashioned morals with a tempering of modern justice.—La Plata Home Press.

HOW TOWN MAN WILL SOLVE FARM PROBLEM

Many farmers are discussing with a good deal of interest and more or les skepticism the effort Theodore Gary, multi-millionaire citizen of Kansas City, is about to launch for the solution of the farm problem up in Macon County. Mr. Gary has been arguing that "community farming' is what the situation demands. The experiment he is about to make is to demonstrate the soundness of his theory.

While making a study of the tax problem the former chairman of the Missouri Highway Commission had the problem of land tenancy thrust under his nose. He became interested in the ten men who were employed on his million-dollar estate, Oak Hill, in the outskirts of Macon. On investigation he found that nine of the ten workmen, ranging between 45 and 50 years old, previously had operated their own farms but had lost them in the agricultural deflation.

From that starting point, Mr. Gary has embarked on his plan of "community farming". He does not expect to have it well under way until next year.

Twenty men, including the ten now working on his estate, will be financed by Mr. Gary in his "back to the farm" program. The owner of the Oak Hill estate will buy small tracts of land of less than twenty acres each. He will stock them with cows pigs and chickens and provide the necessary farming machinery. An agricultural expert will be advisor. Mr. Gary's housekeeper will provide the wives with the training to make them more efficient as farmers' helpers. The farmers will be required to follow the rules of farming laid down by Mr. Gary's overseers.

The community farmers will be employed half time on Mr. Gary's estate. The other half they will be free to work for themselves. The farms are to be near Oak Hill.

"A farm is the best place a working man can hope to obtain a comfortable living with pleasant surroundings for himself and family" Mr. Gary said, commenting on his plan. "The big thing is to get a man in the mental attitude of desiring to make a comfortable living. I believe if large employers generally would try this plan, they would go a long way in solving the unemployment problem and bring comfort and happiness to many working men now struggling for a living in the City"

"The sorest spot in America today economically", Mr. Gary pointed out "is the decline in land values, and the consequent lack of loanable funds for agricultural borrowers. There is plenty of money for everything except farming".

As one of the controlling factors in the Commerce Trust Company, the largest bank in Kansas City, Mr Gary is in a good position to judge.

On tangible property in Missouri, or real estate, 93 per cent of the taxes are collected, Mr. Gary pointed out. "What effect does that have on property values?" he asked "From 1912 to the end of 1928 farm lands in Missouri declined 29 per cent on the basis of the present purchasing power of the dollar. "Twenty per cent of the return from land in Missouri goes to pay taxes. We are better off than other States in the farming belt, where the average is 30 per cent for taxes".

HERE YOU ARE, MR. HOOVER

There is only one way in which Mr. Hoover can quiet the tumult in the Senate over the Supreme Court appointments, and that is to cast about for a liberal judge.

We have found the man for him. He is Judge W. H. D. Green of Van Buren, Mo., who has just ruled that to trade a gallon of moonshine whisky for a horse does not constitute a violation of the prohibition laws. When Charles Johnson, farmer, admitted in court that he had traded a gallon of liquor for a horse to Kinot Reed, a neighbor, Judge Green dismissed the case upon the theory that the deal constituted a trade and could not therefore be construed as a sale of whisky.

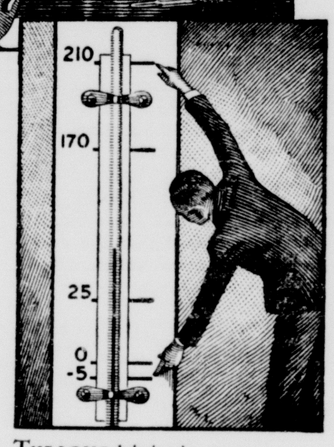

Our advice to Mr. Hoover is to withdraw Judge Parker, friend of yellow dog contracts, and grab this friend of the white mule.—Post-Dispatch.

When animals refuse to eat sweetclover pasture it is usually because the growth is too rank before they have acquired a taste for it. There is no trouble in getting livestock to eat sweetclover if they are turned on it before the growth is big and tough.

Even "dyed-in-the-wool" oil engineers get a thrill out of this test . . .

THIS experiment proves that New Iso-Vis does not "break down" in the crankcase. A special filter removes the crankcase dirt from "used" New Iso-Vis and the oil itself is exactly the same as when freshly distilled.

THE LONG lubricating range of New Iso-Vis covers the whole thermometer. Some oils are defeated by heat—others by cold. New Iso-Vis fights friction at both extremes.

IT IS a simple experiment, but the dramatic results excite even oil experts themselves.

A quart of "used" New Iso-Vis, black with the usual crankcase dirt, is drained from a car after many hundreds of miles of driving. Five minutes later we have a quart of oil that might have come straight from the refinery. It has the clear amber color. The same heavy body.

Yet it is exactly the same quart of oil that was just taken from the crankcase!

What has happened is simply that a special clay filter has removed the dust and dirt. This is one of the many tests that prove beyond question that New Iso-Vis will not thin out in the crankcase.

New Iso-Vis has other important advantages. It brings a radical reduction of carbon deposit. And it gives lubrication over a wider range of temperatures. This important combination of qualities means less wear and longer life for your engine.

New Iso-Vis Motor Oil is on sale at all Standard Oil dealers and service stations.

New ISO-VIS 30¢ a quart Motor Oil

New Polarine is also affected by our new refining processes—giving it an efficiency which is exceeded only by New Iso-Vis. The price is 25 cents a quart.

Black walnut planted in unused or "waste places" on the farm or in good-sized openings in woodlands is likely to make a profitable crop Rough, hilly places where the soil is good but otherwise poorly adapted to crops, large fence corners, fence rows hollows, ravines, stream banks, and large pockets of good soil among rocky out-croppings in fields and pastures are excellent places for growing black walnut. Do not let sycamore, soft maple, alder, willow, beech, black gum, dogwood, or worthless shrubs occupy such places, says the Forest Service. Black walnut yields edible nuts and produces useful and valuable timber.

ROAD COMMITTEE HARD AT WORK ON 61 BETWEEN BENTON-SIKESTON, FINISH MAY 10

With the deadline on the right-of-way for Highway 61 from the Tanner road near Sikeston to a point on the Schwartz farm south of Benton approaching rapidly, the Sikestor road committee has been hitting the ball lively since Monday, April 28.

It is understood that orders have gone forth from the powers that be to have the right-of-way matter completed by May 10, this Saturday. It is believed that this is necesary to include the stretch of 61 in the proposed June lettings. With that in mind, the Sikeston committee has been busy interviewing property owners from Benton south. The stretch from the Tanner road to the connection with Highway 60 will not be completed for the time being.

The following have been devoting time to the right-of-way matter: C. E. Brenton, Ed Fuchs, Emanuel F. Schorle, C. C. White, C. F. Bruton, Ed Coleman, Wallace Applegate, C. H. Denman, Tom Scott, Frank Van Horne, Frank Emerson, Lee Bowman Frank Mount, Tharon Stallings, John Young, Lyle Malone, Joe Matthews and Ernest Harper.

I WANT to talk to ay to the women who have gotten the habit of being fat. Once you were nicely proportioned, and then somehow you let yourself go to a settled, middle aged accumulation of excess fat. You used to be alarmed about your growing waist line, and then after a bit you sort of accepted it as your fate, and now you're rather complacent about it, even though it means that no amount of dress-making seems to give you a smart, well-dressed look.

Of course it takes will power to stick to a diet, even if it is a mild one. If you say "Oh, what's the use?" after a couple of days, or if you follow the diet every other day or so, you'll never recover your trim figure. What I do is put one of my slim pictures on my mirror and say firmly to myself, "Nancy, that's your model, get back to it."

Just think of the splash you will make when your diet is over and you join your friends minus fifteen pounds! You should lose three pounds, this week, you know.

I am going to give you a balancing exercise to add to the four you are already doing. Maybe your knees will crack a little bit at first, but don't let that discourage you. Do it slowly, and try to keep your balance. Start by standing at attention, holding your wand by the ends. At the count of one, bend the knees and lower the body until you are just about sitting on your heels. Then, at the count of two, raise your body to position.

But be sure to find out if your doctor approves of your going on a diet. He knows your fitness better than you do. I think I'll include a little advice on how to stay young next time. Every woman is interested in that subject!

NEW MADRID DISTRICT WINS DRAINAGE SUIT

Poplar Bluff, May 4.—Circuit Judge C. L. Ferguson, handing down an opinion in the Stoddard-New Madrid Drainage District controversy yesterday made permanent an in junction against District No. 44, in Stoddard County, restraining that district from enlarging a drainage ditch connecting with a ditch in District No. 28, New Madrid County.

The controversy centered about a contract, made in 1904, which granted District 44 permission to connect its ditch with one in New Madrid County.

Land owners of New Madrid County secured the injunctin on the grounds that water from the enlarged District 44 ditch would cause the smaller New Madrid ditch to overflow and inundate a large section of agricultural land.

The case was argued before Judge Ferguson two weeks ago.

In his opinion Judge Fegruson said he could find nothing in the law, which would warrant one drainage district dumping surplus water into another district without compensatin or contract.

Even with the old 1904 contract still in effect, the Judge held, District 44 had no right to enlarge its ditch.

An appeal will be takeen by the Stoddard district.

HOME EC. GIRLS WRITE ABOUT SILKS AND RAYON

Last week members of the Domestic Science class of the local high school gave their friends, the Sikeston public, a few pointers on the care of clothing. This week the class is explaining the difference between silk and rayon.

Silk and rayon resemble each other in so many ways, that they are often confused. Each have distinctive characteristics. Rayon is less durable and should be less expensive.

Rayon yarn is heavier, coarser glassier and more easily broken, especially when wet.

The simpliest way to distinguish between the two fibers is to burn them. When pure silk s burned, it burns slowly with a flickering flame and the odor of burning feathers or hair. It forms beads or glossy balls which gives the appearance of having melted. Rayon flames up instantly with a yellow flame which looks and smells like paper.

A piece of white rayon material remains white after repeated washing but silk will turn yellow from either washing or age.

Rayon feels wiry but lifeless. Silk has life in it. For example, when silk is wadded in the hand, it fills the hand and tries to push the hand open. Rayon is more like wire screening, it is hard to pick up and springs, but does not have life.

Mrs. Robertson of San Diego, California, formerly Mrs. Maude Stubbs of this city, arrived Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Ruskin Cook. She and Mrs. Cook are visiting at the home of Louis Watkins, Mrs. Robertson's brother, and her sister, Miss Tudie Watkins. Mrs. Robertson will leave for St. Louis in a few days, returning here for a longer visit later.

Mrs. E. J. Malone, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Malone are located at the home of John R. Malone while the big house is being remodeled.

Mrs. L. O. Rodes entertained Friday evening for her nephew, Jasper and Henrietta Moore, at her home on Tanner Stret. After the pleasant evening at Mrs. Rodes, the girls repaired to the home of Mrs. E. C. Matthews for a bunking party. The children reported a most enoyable time.

The Odor of the Chrysanthemums

By BEATRICE VANDEGRIFT

(Copyright.)

JOHN SOMERS stood a moment before the open door of a florist's and breathed deeply. The cool, clean, wintry odor of chrysanthemums swept to his nostrils and brought an ache to his throat. It was just a year ago that lovely, gay Rosalie Moore had told him that she never wanted to see him again.

They were coming home in the crush after a football game, her small, pretty face lifted to his among the scores of nondescript countenances that pressed meaninglessly around him. The yellow chrysanthemum that he had given her curled against the shoulder of her gray squirrel coat, a few of its petals slowly dropping to be crushed by the unheeding feet that followed.

She had never seemed so gay or so loving. She pressed close to him as if for protection and answered the touch of his hand on her arm with a quiver.

Between the halves, in the small respite from the excitement of the game, she had whispered that she would marry him. After the game, at the door of the chic little apartment that she shared with another girl, she had said that she wouldn't—that her career meant too much.

John argued heatedly and old-fashionedly about women and their careers. He wanted her terribly, safe in his home, just as his wife. He loved her too much to share her with an oak desk in a cold-blooded advertising house. She had laughed disdainfully at his views. Then she melted a bit. To compromise, she would marry him if he let her keep on working.

John answered passionately that he wanted a wife, not a part-time sweetheart. At that she said coldly that he had better go. She never wanted to see him again. After he had gone, she buried her bright blond head in her futuristic sofa cushions and cried.

John, standing before the florist's and breathing in his dead romance with the living scent of the chrysanthemums, did not know that she had wept. He only knew that she had dismissed him haughtily and that he had been too proud ever to seek her out again. But the woody, wintry fragrance of the yellow flowers impelled him to go into the little shop and order a dozen to be sent to her address. He left the address of his own apartment and taxied home, thoughtful and impatient.

In two hours the telephone rang and the florist's voice announced regretfully that there was no Miss Rosalie Moore living at the address he had given and that no one seemed to know where she had gone. What should they do with the chrysanthemums?

"Oh, send 'em to some hospital," ordered John Somers drearily. "Don't forget to take off my card."

In a yellow-walled semi-private room of a city hospital, Rosalie Moore was surrounded by the soft-footed tread of nurses.

One of them, outside her door, listened respectfully to the doctor.

"She should be pulling out of it," he said thoughtfully. "It was a pretty bad accident, of course, but not this bad."

"She doesn't seem to care about anything, doctor," whispered the nurse. "She just lies there and doesn't try."

"Hasn't she any people?"

The nurse shook her head.

"Well, try to snap her out of it, anyhow," ordered the young physician. "There isn't a reason in the world she shouldn't get well."

"Maybe a few of these good-looking flowers will cheer her up," volunteered a passing probationer, stopping with an armful of curly yellow chrysanthemums. "Let's try 'em."

She arranged them attractively beside the white iron bed of the listless girl who did not even turn her head. Yet, after a while, their clean autumn fragrance began to penetrate her tired senses . . . stimulated her memory. . . . A year ago. The football game, the close, pressing crowds and John who loved her. She had been a ninny to send him away, but too proud ever to call him back.

The chrysanthemums swept her mind clean of pain and listlessness. Did he send these flowers in remembrance? There was no card. But perhaps he had sent them as a silent token of his love—if he still loved her.

"Nurse," she said faintly but with spirit, "Would you mind calling up Trafalgar 6140 and asking Mr. John Somers, if he's there, to come and see me?"

On the way to the telephone the nurse met the little probationer again in the hall, her arms laden with another batch of bright yellow chrysanthemums.

"More of 'em," she sighed. "The eleventh dozen to come in here today . . . some rich woman sends them."

Church Pigeon Messenger

J. Palastanga, verger at the garrison church of Holy Trinity, Windsor, England, has trained a pigeon to notify his wife when he will be home to dinner after service. He takes the bird to church in a little basket and when he learns the rector's instructions for the services, he sends a message by the pigeon to Mrs. Palastanga. The pigeon was born in the tower of the church and its training began when it could fly.

Modernizing Starts W

Marked Changes Possible In The Average House

Interior Decorating One Phase of Effort

The Home Modernizing Movement is calculated to improve the home both inside and out. Remodeling may be necessary in many cases where the exterior of the residence still bears the stamp of the architecture of 20 years ago. Yet modernizing rather than the more limited remodeling is the aim of this campaign.

Modernization is an all embracing word. Your home may have the model lines that are now in vogue yet contain many accessories that are out of date or the home may be lacking in those conveniences that have recently come into such generally accepted use.

Livability of Home Depends on Modernization

Home modernizing really starts with the interior of the home. It is here that the home-life functions and it is only right that the home be equipped with the newly devised equipment that makes living so worth while.

Even though the exterior lines of the dwelling be smartly up to date, now is the time to thoughtfully consider the interior to see if you are receiving full satisfaction from it.

Marked changes are possible in the average house. The layout of the rooms is often inconvenient and unsatisfactory. Certain rooms may need enlarging or alterations. A lack of closets is a handicap to the housekeeper. The stairs to the upper floor may be inaccessible or narrow.

Styles Change in Furnishings

Consider also the furnishings of the home. Styles change in furniture and the parlor set of fifteen years ago is now out of date. Carpets, covering the entire floor, were necessary in the days of soft wood but nowadays have been discarded in favor of rugs. Chinese or Oriental rugs may be beyond the limits of the family purse, but domestic rugs of similar pattern and most artistic are available today.

The arrangement of the furniture is new. Years ago the chairs and tables were placed along the walls with stiff formality, but now they scattered around the rooms in a studied disarray. A cozy, homey atmosphere is secured which is not possible with the more formal arrangement.

New home accessories are constantly being placed on the market. While the average home can purchase furniture at infrequent intervals, new effects can be secured by frequent changes of lamp shades, curtains and drapes, table covers, cushions and the like. It is possible to keep abreast of the times with these moderate priced accessories which make the home always bright and fresh.

New Types of Wall Decorations

Changes in wall decorations are also another angle of home modernizing. Lately canvass covered walls, painted with several coats of flat paint, have been popular. The standard wall paper, however, comes out each year with new designs and color effects and will always remain in vogue.

Many newly constructed homes use no wall covering, the plaster being tinted and finished in a rough yet striking texture.

Plastic paints with which effects in modified texture can be achieved, a finish half way between the smooth plaster and the very rough textured effects. The resulting finish has been described as combining the restraint of the untextured painted wall with the distinction of hard worked plaster. It is universally suitable for the decoration of side walls.

You would have to hire a fastidious person to live in this old-time. Yet when modern sized its owners were the envy of the neighborhood. Look above and see change.

STUCCO PAINT that Beautifies and Protects

STUCCO houses need painting, too. That is why we carry LOWE BROTHERS STUCCO PAINT which beautifies the home and protects the stucco from the severe attacks of the weather.

Stucco paint comes in many beautiful colors appropriate for stucco homes.

Come in and let us talk this over with you.

Laws Could Add to Personal Comfort

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor:

Here's a copy of the message I am sending to congress and maybe they might not dast give it out to the papers so here's a copy of it:

To Congress:

Well, ladys and gents, I realize it ain't customary for nobody only the president to send you boys a message but still and all they's no law vs. nobody sending you one a specially a man that come as close to the white house as myself, and might of got all the way in if I hadn't of left Washington a few minutes before the Coolidges decided to make it a amusement park, at least judgeing from some of the birds that did get in I don't see how they could of barred this baby.

And besides if you boys is anything like our last congress a message will go just as big whether it comes from me or the president or the outja board, so anyway I am going to write and point out a few things that needs tension.

Well, gents, you know the old gag that people that lives in a glass house shouldn't drink out of a bottle so the place to commence makeing reforms le right where you are at, namely the nation's capital, and I don't know no way you can make a better beginning than appt. a committee to attend the ball games in Washington this season and find out if the home team is really playing their best.

And the next thing to do is to give the town Pullman telephone booths so a person can enjoy a nights rest while waiting for the wrong number and thus kill 2 birds with one nickel besides getting your shoes shined.

"Please use this rag to wipe your razor as one small cut destroys a towel."

"Guests without baggage 25 cts. extra for meals served in booth."

"Stop; have you anything left?"

Pass a bill providing for the president not to leave Washington during his incumbrance as they are libel to run wild when they get away from home and go to say Paree and buck the Tiger or something. Presidents, of course, like to travel because they get 10 cts. per mile which nets them about 2 cts. profit at the present rates minus the amusement tax on a upper but if they claim they can't get along without some such kind of a get rich quick scheme, why allow them a dime for every mile they stay on the fairway and I guess by the end of 4 yrs. they will have enough saved up to buy ½ interest in a milk chocolate.

I also wished you would put up the names of the different govt. bldgs. In big letters so as when a man is showing his Mrs. the town she won't act like she has him subpoened.

Borrow a 10 yr. old dependent child somewheres and give it to the bird that figured out the personal exemption allowance on the income tax and make him support it on $200 a year.

Pass a rule to permit smoking in the senate and house so as you boys won't keep asking teacher if you can leave the rm.

So much for local legislation and now we come to matters that effects the whole U. S. States and the first thing to do is pass another amendment because it takes in both the 18th and 19th amendments to have this new amendment provide that Election Day is Kings X from prohibition so a man will have some place to hang around while the madam is spoiling ballots.

Repeal the truants law so a person won't have to go all spring and fall without a caddy.

Repeal the law vs. the rabbit punch in boxing. This punch is a blow that lands at the Base of a fighter's brain and it looks to me that the man that lands it instead of being disqualified ought to be given a seat in the hall of fame along with Columbus and Admiral Peary.

No ½ fare minded congress wants to show partiality towards either one of the 2 big govt. war schools so no other sporting event that should ought to be laid on the shelf is the service game. This saves them the trouble of getting rid of the ticket.

Pass a law vs. men wearing clothes which don't benefit nobody but the Chinaman. Or if it looks like there was too much opposition abolishing this quaint custom together, at least leave us have a govt. regulation so as when you called up and not to dinner you have to go through no all day of the Marne deciding if you will you won't.

Make some kind of a universal law in regards to hats in co-ed elevators. The way it is now a man is all right if he stays in one town but the minute he goes visiting he is all wrong.

For inst. If you are in Chicago keep your hat on unless the elevator is in a hotel or a department store. In N. Y. city you also take the hat on in a apt. bldg. providing the party is not your own wife or a relative. In places like Washington you can expose yourself in elevators of all kinds and when I and the madam are on a sight-seeing trip to the different floors of office bldgs. I discovered it was the only gent in the car who covered egg and felt even sillier than ever.

These is a few of the needed legislations, boys, and I wished you would

Interior of the Home

THIS HANDSOME BUNG ONCE A GRIMY COTTAGE

The sweeping roof lines and attractive entry-way of this bungalow speaks of up-to-date architecture. No one would suspect that it was modernized from the weatherbeaten single story house shown below at the left.

Modernized Cottage Now Smart Looking Bungalow

Sweeping Lines Enhance Beauty of Dwelling

After contrasting the two houses shown to the left, doubting Thomases who believe that they are not the same are invited to cast an eagle eye at the house next door, found at the right in each picture.

That the house next door is the same is plainly evident by the group of three windows, and the gable end. The points of contact are evident and prove that these before and after illustrations show what modernization means to the exterior lines of a house.

Once a Lowly Cottage

The smart-looking bungalow at the top of the page was once the lowly cottage shown below it. The sweeping roof lines and arched entrance reveal the spirit of today—a far cry from the ginger-bread adorned architecture of the early nineties.

When the owner of the cottage decided to invest in modernization, he ingructed the contractor, first of all, to get rid of the old fashioned front porch with its ugly trimming.

In its place he devised a plain little entry way covered by an extension of the roof which sweeps down in a fascinating curve. An arched enterance with a shingled column supports the extremity of the roof.

Stained Shingles Used

The plain clap-boarding of the older structure has been superceded by shingle sides which add so much to the homey intimate atmosphere of this bungalow. Incidently stained shingles, stucco, or brick veneer are popular siding for small houses and permit effective color schemes.

A ventilator with horizontal louvres allows the entrance of air into the attic, insuring a draft in hot summer weather so that heated air will not accumulate and warm the rooms below.

The large fixed bay window that lighted the front room of the house was torn away when the building was modernized. A broad opening filled with two sliding windows now occupies the place. Quaintly paneled wooden shutters flank each window opening at the front. Shutters of this type are usually distinctive and aid in setting the house apart from its neighbors.

Interior Also Modern

The interior of the house is as modern as its exterior. The various rooms of the bungalow have been made up-to-date and every convenience that will add to the comfort and convenience of the occupants is found.

Like most old houses soft wood floors had been used in each room. These floors were relaid with hardwood and waxed to bring out their rich effects.

Electrical outlets are found in each room so that floor lamps can be used without cords reaching to the center cluster of hanging lights as was necessary before modernization. The fixtures of the center cluster of lights has been made smartly up-to-date, the old fashioned combination gas and electric fixtures being discarded.

A new heating plant in the basement, a modern appearing tub and shower in the bath, a colored gas range and electric refrigerator in the kitchen comprise a few of the touches of modernization that came when the old place was made up to date.

The experiences of this owner are not unique. Hundreds upon hundreds of dwellings just as hopeless looking have made up to the minute when modernized.

Electrical Outlets Necessary

Many Electrical Accessories Used Today

Electrical outlets are much in demand in the modern home. The increased use of electricity and the many varied types of accessories creates an abundance of outlets necessary.

The older house contained few if any outlets, a cord running from the center cluster being necessary if the sidewife needed additional service.

The newest houses contain two or more outlets in the mopboard, each being so equipped.

Often the center cluster of lights in the living room is not used because of the vogue for floor lamps, the appearance of the center cluster adds or detracts from the decorative effect of the room and the cluster should be kept up to date. Changes in design are frequent and the cluster must be renewed occasionally if the room be modern.

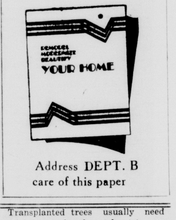

Each room of the house has electrical accesories peculiar to it. Outlets are always necessary if full service is to be secured.

Floor lamps are found in many rooms of the house. In the bedroom will be used electric warming pads, heaters and bed lamps. The dining room needs outlets for electric cooking fixtures, such as toasters, waffle irons, grills and percolators, since many housewives prepare some dishes at the table.

In the kitchen outlets waist-high are convenient and may be used when electricity is used for cooking. Many housewives iron in the kitchen and outlets must be available for this service.

Overdo Evening Feeding Rather Than Underdo It

It is better to overdo the matter of evening feeding a little than to slight it. If a little grain is left in the litter, it will be eagerly scratched out in the morning.

Great care should be taken, however, so to feed that the straw is scratched absolutely free of grain at least once a day. In following this particular routine this should be the condition at noon.

The really skilled feeder is the one who so handles the ration that he constantly piques the appetite of his fowls, making them consume large amounts of feed with relish, yet never giving quite all they would like to consume.

Commercial Fertilizer Boosted Michigan Crops

A recent survey in Michigan showed the advantage of the use of commercial fertilizer on five staple crops. From one hundred to seven hundred farmers were interviewed in respect to the experiences they had with each crop. The addition of fertilizer increased corn yields from 36 to 47.5 bushels per acre of 206 farms, on 100 farms potato yields were raised from 115 bushels to 173 bushels. Wheat yields bumped from 16.5 bushels to 27.4 bushels on 712 farms. The increase for oats was from 38.0 bushels to 52.8 bushels on 344 farms. With beans 114 farmers stated that their crops averaged 13.2 bushels without fertilizer and 17.7 bushels with the fertilizer treatment. Other observations seem to support these findings.

Agricultural Hints

The sweetening of soils is one of the greatest farm problems.

Hauling out the manure aids in keeping the surroundings of the dairy barn clean and sanitary.

There are as many flavors of honeys as there are varieties of apples and many shades and colors.

Alfalfa requires a sweet soil and it also requires a soil capable of growing at least 40 bushels of corn per acre.

New York and Pennsylvania beekeepers are likely to prefer honey from buckwheat blossoms which has an entirely different flavor.

The leaves are the most nutritious part of alfalfa hay, yet they are often broken off and lost by the ordinary method of harvesting.

Vines alone will do much to cover unpainted buildings, unsightly corners and unlovely fences. In addition, they lend an air of coziness and provide much desired shade in summer.

The hatching season is fast approaching. It is time to mate the breeders. Choose only your best, well matured, vigorous males of good color and type to mate with hens which have survived your cullings.

Still Use Roman Roads

The changes which have come over the planning and execution of great highways built or projected across the continent prove that the first builders of roads were the best, according to Thomas S. Bosworth, in the New York Times. The main highways across Europe, many of them still in use today after 2,000 years, remain as monuments to the supreme mechanical genius of the Americans of their day, the old Romans. Not only did they plan their roads on the principle that the straight line is the shortest between two points, but they built them so well that, with minor changes, the modern cities of Europe still depend upon them for their communication by automobile.

Early Start

A visitor in a mountain village noticed that one citizen was always up very early, but never did any work. So he questioned the man's wife.

"Why does your husband rise so early?"

"Oh, he wants an early breakfast."

"But he doesn't do anything. Why must he have such an early breakfast?"

"To smoke after."

Favorite Vegetable

Jimmie, age four, is very proud of ability to eat various kinds of food that are placed before him from day to day. The other evening there were several guests at the table, and he was discussing his accomplishment to the discredit of his two brothers, whose tastes are not so easily satisfied.

"I like almost everything," said Jimmie. "I even like liver and fat meat. Franklin and Shirley don't. Liver and fat meat are my favorite vegetables."

Two ways to Rob Yourself

There are two ways in which you may do yourself injustice; by non-insurance of your property or over-insurance.

By refusing needed additional insurance you are in danger of assuming a fire loss beyond the limits of your personal protection. In other words you are inadequately insured! On the other hand you may be wasting good money year after year for too much insurance.

Dry leaders who were so gleeful over the Literary Digest poll and so sure it reflected public sentiment against Al Smith two years ago are very sure the wet and dry poll now being taken is a delusion and a snare. To the general public, however, it proves two things. First, that on a popular vote prohibition would not get a popular verdict. Second, that religious prejudice, not dry sentiment, resulted in Al Smith's defeat. The absolute accuracy of two presidential polls taken by the Literary Digest very effectively disarms those who question either the accuracy or fairness of the one now in progress. Lax enforcement more than anything else, we believe, is contributing to the growing dissatisfaction with the 18th amendment.—Paris Appeal.

Old Sol was bearing down for all he was worth Thursday much to the discomfort of very young infants and the sick. Those of us who were able to be up and around spent most of the day saying, "Yes sir, we sure do need a rain". That's a fact, too, thousands of acres have been planted to corn and cotton near here. Some of the crops are just pushing through the ground while others are now being planted. All in all, it seems that a good rain, a real two-inch soaker would mean millions of dollars for this community.

Of all the useless bunk foisted upon a weary public, the custom of introducing a speaker is about the worst. The person who gets that job wears out the audience in trying to arouse their attention, tells all the jokes that the speaker had planned to use, and has everybody wishing they had stayed at home before he gets through. And then, too, why should a speaker be introduced? All of his listeners know his name, what he looks like, and care little about his family history or personal reputation.—Sehlbina Democrat.

MANAGER HERE

Ben E. Topper, above recently appointed manager of the Sikeston branch of the Whiz-Bang Stores Inc., comes to Sikeston from Marianna Ark., having opened the newest addition for the Whiz-Bang Co. there.

Mr. Topper's former home was in Memphis, Tenn.

Topper has been with the Whiz-Bang Stores Co. for sometime and brings to Sikeston a thorough knowledge of the Retail Mercantile business and distribution of merchandise and styles to the buying public gained even a perid of long experience in this field.

The Sikeston branch is one of the leading Whiz-Bang branches in Missouri and Arkansas in the point sales and personnel employed.

Mr. Topper is a married man, having one child, a boy 3 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Topper will make Sikeston their home as soon as arrangements can be made for living quarters.

Well, no wonder there's a slump in the sale of feminine wearing apparel. Since style shoppes have substituted the faces of dead ones for the faces of live ones on their wax models men knock on the purchase of a new dress, on the theory that their wives or daughters may look like the expressionless creatures on whom duds are displayed in show windows. In former days the wax figures had sparkling eyes, rich red lips and that look of unsophistication which men covet for those of their own households. Thinking it was the clothes that made them look that way, the poor brutes encouraged women to buy early and often. Who would want his wife or daughter—or even his neighbor's wife or daughter—to look like such monstrosities as are now seen in shoppe windows?—Paris Appeal.

CONSIDER THE CANDIDATE

The candidate is now abroad in the land. We've seen him. Like the wild onion, and static, and dandelions, and straw hats, and dusty streets, and high prices, and several other things, he's amongst us. You can't forget him, and you can't ignore him and you can't hide from him. He's a part and parcel of our daily life, in considerable numbers until August, and in smaller numbers but greater intensity from then until November.

It must be a lot of fun to be a candidate, and pretty soon a man who hasn't run for at least one office will be regarded as decidedly inexperienced. If our schools keep on in their present tendency, we expect to see courses offered on "How to Gyp the Voters".

This early in the campaign we notice how anxiously some of the office-seekers approach the boys from the forks of the creek to inquire about the health of grandma and the need of rain. We've heard some of them are even attending church and dropping coins into the collection basket They speak to you clear across the street, and if you have a few brothers and sisters and other relatives they may sign a note for you. A liberal percentage of them will be either for or against prohibition, will either cuss or praise the present administration, and otherwise be just as agreeable as you could possibly require a man to be.

However, you mere voters need not expect a candidate to knock his opponent, no matter how much you may encourage him. Invariably he will say, "I haven't a thing against my opponent, I think he is a good man, and throughout this campaign nobody will ever hear me say a word against him—though I have heard that he whips his wife and that he stole a cow".

But there are more humbugs among the mere voters than among the candidates. A candidate who gets a hundred votes has been previously promised at least a thousand The average voter proudly announces that he will vote for the "best qualified man" and then casts his vote for some bird that gave him a mess of greens, or shook hands with him, or bought candy for his kids. The "best qualified man" is often as ignorant as a hog, and as crooked as he knows how to be.

Those of us who merely vote get enthusiastic for the chap who slaps us on the back, brags on us, buys us a cigar and proceeds to lose all semblance of a backbone. The candidate we ought to vote for is probable too busy to pay any attention to us, knows us too well to brag on us and decides if we want a cigar we can buy it ourselves.

American politics is a queer institution, and we get a little cynical whenever we consider it.

Does the following extract from a political announcement, made in a Paris, Ark., newspaper by a candidate for the post of prosecuting attorney in the judicial district which comprises Logan, Franklin and Crawford counties, need comment or explanation?

"As for myself, I am an Arkansas hill-billy born and raised in the Boston Mountains north of Ozark. Outran the dogs on Sunday morning to keep from having my face washed—did my sparking barefooted and or foot—and never saw a train until I was 15 years old.

"I have farmed with a double shovel and Georgia stock and plowed an old mule 19 years old without 'cussin', have taught school, preached and practiced law and am a first-class mechanic, having worked right smart around a sorghum mill.

"I want the office because I think I can make a living out of it and will promise, if elected, to make things so warm for crooks and law violators of all kinds that they will think hell ain't 40 feet from the courthouse.

"I expect to spend the time between now and election on August 12 kissing the babies, bragging on the women's cooking, complimenting the farmers on their crops and warming things up for my opponents".—Fredericktown Democrat.

CAPE "FORDS" WIN BOWLING TITLE FROM LOCALS FRIDAY

Cape Giardeau, May 3.—The Ford bowling team, by defeating the Sikeston all-star five, Friday night, on the Sikeston alleys, by a score of 2,289 to 2038, captured the odd game of a curent three-game series. The first team to go from here last Friday night won out, but the Sikeston five turned the tables on the Clown team, Wednesday night, and so the game Friday night was the deciding tussle of the three games. Grebing of the local five was the high scorer for his team with 506 and also was the only one to go over the 500 mark. Van Arsdale was the high scorer for the Sikeston five with 476. The next game between Cape Girardeau and Sikeston will be next Friday night when the International Shoe Co. factory five goes to Sikeston.

The scores:

The Sikeston bowlers are not content to allow the matter to drop at this stage of the game. On Tuesday night of this week, the State Highway team meets Sensenbaugh's garage team, and Thursday night, the local Shoe Makers will tangle with the Galloway Drug Company Five. An all-star team chosen from high score averages in the two games mentioned will meet the Cape Girardeau International Shoe men Friday night May 9, at the Heisler-Littleton alleys.

The victorious Cape Fords will play here again May 16.

SUMMARY OF TREATY BY FIVE SEA POWERS

By the terms of the naval treaty signed by representatives of the five Powers at London, the United States srould have achieved parity with Great Britain by the date of its expiration, December 31, 1936. Japan will occupy at that time a ratio of navalval power somewhere between the 5-5-3 conference and the 10-10-7 auxiliary ship ratio sought at the beginning of this conference.

Nine batleships are to be scrapped, or, in the case of three, converted to training vessels, and a five-year capital ship construction holiday is decreed. The ships to be scrapped are, for the United States, the Florida, Utah and either the Arkansas or the Wyoming, while Great Britain will abandon the Bembow, the Iron Duke, the Marlborough, the Emperor of India and the Tiger; Japan will scrap the Hiyei.

Under the treaty the United States may have 180,000 tons of large cruisers, Great Britain, 146,800 tons, and Japan 108,400 tons; in small cruisers the United States may have 143,500 tons, Great Britain 192,200 tons, and Japan 100,450 tons; destroyer tonnages are set at, the United States, 150,00 tons; Great Britain, 150,000 tons and Japan, 105,000 tons. Each of the three powers agrees to keep its submarine tonnage within 52,700.

Neither France nor Italy is signatory to that section of treaty limiting cruisers and auxiliary craft, and a safeguarding clause has, therefore been inserted which will allow either of the three Powers to increase its program, the others increasing theirs proportionatley, should a continental naval race develop.

France and Italy signed sections of the treaty fixing a capital ship holiday, prescribing rules of submarine warfare, and relating to less important phases of disarmament.

The Russell-Bradley Missionary Society will meet Friday night at the home of Mrs. Frank Van Horne.

"CAPITOL STTAMER DE LUXE TO RETURN WEDNESDAY, MAY 21

Everyone will remember the beautiful Steamer "J. S.", which stopped at Cairo just recently. Many were amazed at the furnishings and service rendered by this beautiful craft. Her sistership, the "Capitol" Steamer De Luxe, is coming again after an absence of a year, during which time she has been transformed into a beautiful palace—with an entrancing Japanese garden, a ball room representing Jungeland, a romanting roof garden. You enter the Japanese garden as you board the steamer with its waving palms, lanterns, parasols, reed furniture and floral decorations, reproductive of far-off Japan. In this garden Japanese or American dishes will be served you, or you may relax in the easy chairs and enjoy the ride. Ascending the stairs you enter a lobby gaily decorated and furnished with wicker furniture, and there you get the first glimpse of the beautiful Jungle Ball Room, which glitters in the light of the moon, and is decorated with pictures of the most handsome jungle scenes, and shiney clusters of grapes among the russet leaves cover the entire ceiling. In it Sidney's Southern Syncopators, one of the best orchestras of the Southland will play the dancing program. This organization, only recently formed, renders a brand of music that pleases patrons of all tastes. The decks have been completely refitted with gaily colored wicker furniture of every type that you can think of, flower baskets and steamer chairs. The Steamer Capitol and J. S. are noted for their high class service, equipment and a good time. You will be surprised when you see the marvelous transformation on the New Steamer when it comes to Cairo for a moon-Capitol De Luxe Wednesday, May 21, light excursion, leaving Cairo at 8:30 p. m. and returning at 12 midnight. See for yourself, then describe it if you can.

RASPBERRIES LARGE AS PLUMS GROW IN HAWAII

The berry picker's dream is a reality in Hawaii, where one stands in the shade and picks raspberries the size of plums or larger from barbless canes.

The Hawaii Agricultural Experiment Station is testing numerous seedlings of this native berry, known locally as the akala berry, in the hope of developing it commercially.

The akala, perhaps more closely related to our salmon berry than to American raspberries, was discovered by Europeans in Hawaii in 1778 and since then has gradually disappeared from the lower elevations. The fruits ordinarilly grow to a diameter of an inch or an inch and a half and the larger ones 2 inches in diameter, according to the annual report of the Hawaii Agricultural Experiment Station. The canes grow 1 or 2 inches in diameter, forming a dense underbrush in the forests.

An added attraction for berry pickers, aside from size of fruits, is the disappearance or barbs from the canes after they are one or two years old.

Hawaiian raspberries have been introduced into California but have never come into general use.

EX-PASTOR INDICTED FOR ABDUCTING GIRLS

St. Louis, May 1.—The Rev. A. L. Shoemaker, former pastor of the Edwards Street Pentecostal Mission, Alton, was indicted Wednesday for abduction of three girls. He is held in default of $9000 bond.

Two of the abduction charges refer to Annette Harris and Edith Hankins, 20 years, former saxophone players in his mission, who disappeared from their homes in Alton last October 11, the same day Shoemaker left, deserting his wife and two small children. The pastor was arrested in Lakeland, Fla., February 12, as he closed a revival service. Authorities there said the young women were occupying an apartment with him, representing themselves as his daughters.

The other indictment charges Shoemaker with abducting Miss Bernice Ford, taking her to Missouri, prior to his disappearance from Alton.

No charges were brought against Shoemaker by the girls, although they testified before the grand jury. One of them fainted during her testimony.

Enticing an unmarried woman from her home constitutes abduction in Illinois and is punishable by imprisonment from one to ten years. Shoemaker was at liberty until yesterday under a $2500 bond set at a preliminary hearing last February 17 on a charge of abducting the two members of his choir.

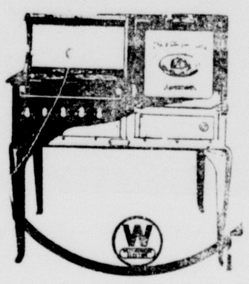

Before storing winter blankets, wash them, and put them away with naphthalene flakes between the folds If they are wrapped in thick, heavy wrapping paper and tied with the ends turned in so no moths can get in to lay eggs, they will be safe from moth damage during the warm months.

Electric power has rendered a most prolific and progressive service to Industry---man's field. But its most humane and appealing service has been in home utilities---the development of electrically controled articles which contribute to the woman's comfort, ease of effort and the expediting of her home duties and problems.

It is part of man's obligation to provide these woman-savers---to adopt and apply them to the woman's business of keeping house so that she can conduct her affairs on the same efficient, economical and practical basis as any other business.

A RACING PILOT'S Slant on Everyday Motoring—

by Ralph Hepburn

II

How to Buy a Car

A RACING driver's slant on ordinary, everyday automobile driving may seem rather warped in the eyes of the average individual. Yet, when you think about it, why shouldn't a racing driver be in a better position to know about automobiles and driving than the average person?

On the race track, the speed demon crams into a few hours all the experiences that Mr. and Mrs. John Public get in the average year's driving. Things happen faster on the race track. And they happen in such a way as to leave a lasting impression.

On the highway, if a motorist makes a turn too quickly, it generally means a close call with a lamp post or a pole. The same occurrence on a race track usually means serious trouble and the racer who commits this error of judgment may find himself lying in a distant field—in case he ever finds out anything.

Writing for the insauction of the ordinary driver is a large order. I can think of a lot of things I am more capable of doing, but if the motorist reads these, and profits thereby, it is well worth any effort on my part.

In the first place, I have some strong ideas about choosing a car. An automobile should be fitted to the use of the individual, his family and business requirements, and his pocketbook. This can be done, these days. Many people buy high powered, ponderous transportation, when a lighter car would fill their needs and leave money in the bank. Others choose the wrong style of body, while still others risk their necks in a "lot for the money" chariot which is all body and display and which has little, if anything, under the hood.

I believe in a motor as small in horsepower as is consistent with the work it will be called upon to do, on the average.

If my use of a car is mostly in connection with city driving or its congested environs, I want a car that can be easily steered and controlled, with a short wheel base for easy parking. It must have an all-steel body for, in my opinion, this type of body is safer and less liable to squeak and rattle. Its door posts are smaller, thus increasing visibility. And its finish coats are more durable. In fact it is conducive to the main characteristic I seek in a car—long useful life. This type of body can withstand much abuse and if an accident should occur, my chances of escape from injury are considerably increased.

Day by day I grew better, and when I had finished, the third bottle I was normal, healthy again. A year of suffering was ended in just three weeks. No wonder Konjola is known as the master medicine of them all".

HOME MODERNIZING PROGRAM INTERESTS BUILDING ASSOCIATION

The success or failure of the home modernizing project often depends upon the ability of the home owner to secure needed financial assistance The interest of local financial institutions in the movement is indicative of the response that will come when the home owners approach these organizations for the needed assistance

When interview upon the subject, W. O. Carroll stated that the policy of the organization was to aid home owners to improve the value of their property and that the efforts of the institution would be to encourage home modernization.

"It has been our experience that money invested in improving the home is safe money. The risk is usually small because the value of the property is enhanced by the improvements.

"When a home owner comes to us for money with which to improve his property we feel that he is a good risk and are inclined to look with favor upon his efforts to obtain money. Of course, we have to investigate carefully to see that the property is clear, that the owner is in a position to make payments on the loan and that the money will be actually spent for the purpose intended. These are reasonable precautions and no owner can be offended at our taking them

"The purpose of this organization is to aid the home builder to purcase his own home. While building and owning were first in the plans of the institution, the modernization program of many owners is in line with the general purposes of the association and home owners seeking funds for financing their modernization are welcomed at the offices of this organization".

ASK CITY TO JOIN IN COAL RATE HEARING

Cape Girardeau, May 6.—Under date of April 26th the Railroads serving Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition requesting a general investigation of rates on coal from Illinois Kentucky and Alabama to all points within this territory, and for the reopening of certain cases that have been decided heretofore and which resulted in a material reduction in rates to many points. They have also asked that all cases now pending before the Commission, of which there are many, affecting such coal rates be suspended and consolidated in the general investigation.

Should the Commission grant this request, the rates to your city will be under investigation and unless properly presented to the Commissin, the case may result in general increases hence it is important that your community be represented at the hearing and on brief.

The purpose of this letter is, therefore, to acquaint you with the scope of the pending litigation and to urge upon you the necessity of properly protecting your interests by competent representation at the hearing.

The Carriers have never been satisfied with the order of the Commission in former cases which required them to reduce their rates on coal and it is apparent that their purpose is to convince the Commission the rates should be increased and secure permission to increase them. An increase of fifty cents per ton on all coal moving into the territory involved will mean an additional tax upon the people of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually which the community should not be required to pay.

I shall be very glad to inform you immediately upon receipt of information from the Commissin as to whether they grant the request of the railroads for the investigation sought and in the meantime, if you desire any further information please write us. Southeast Missouri Traffic Bureau.

IN MEMORIUM

In fond remembrance of Edward Maurice Dazey, who died two years ago, May 3rd:

My darling brother passed away
Just two short years ago, today
But it seems but yesterday.

Times does not harden my love for him. But a daily thought of that terrible suffering, and that sweet smile when God called his spirit to come on High, has filled my heart with a knowledge, that he is happier in that home that has been prepared before; altho' he has left a vacancy which never can be filled. because he was the only brother. He spent eight years of suffering, with his heart broken sister, Emma Boardman.

Sirups left over from cooking fruits or from canned fruit may be saved to sweeten punches and other fruit drinks.

COMPLETE TRESTLE SOON

Poplar Bluff, May 2.—Work is nearing completion on the half mile trestle across the low section flooded at intervals by the St. Francis River near Fisk, and with completion of this project motor traffic between Poplar Bluff and Cairo will be interrupted only at rare intervals by overflows.

The S. J. Cohen Construction Co of Blytheville, Ark., has the contract for this project, costing around $95,000.

The trestle is constructed of piling driven into the ground and extending 11 feet above the ground. It is high enough to prevent the St. Francis River from cutting off traffic at any time of the year. A concrete floor is being laid on the superstructure of piling and wood framework. H. T Gossett of Memphis, engineer in charge, said the project would be completed within a short time.

The concrete highway will be used at all times except during flood stages of the St. Francis River. The trestle is 21 feet wide and is laid in blocks of concrete 21 by 16 feet, in order that repairs to any particular section may be made without disturbing the other sections. It is one of the most unique jobs of highway building in the State, engineers assert.

The Standard $1.50 per year.

Young pigs need plenty of exercise to prevent them from becoming too fat. It is often necessary to force the pigs to take exercise several times a day during the first ten days of their lives. The indications of too much fat are small rolls of fat around the neck and jerky breathing. The common term for this trouble is "thumps"

When the Mid-week Kodak Hour is presented over stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System every Thursday night, these entertainers display their respective talents for the edification of the radio audience. Della Baker sings the soprano solos in a most admirable manner, as also does Helen Oelheim in her contralto numbers. As for the masculine member of the trio—he is Hugh Walton. It is his duty to insert much feeling and tenderness into his readings of Edgar A. Guest's poems.

The MEDICINE You Should Take After You Have Tried The Others

If you wake up in the morning with spots before your eyes, swimming in your head, coated tongue, bad taste in your mouth, you are bilious, your liver is out of order. If you have gas pains, belching, bloating, indigestion after meals, your stomach is out of order. If you are unable to sleep all through the night, have to get up to answer nature's call, your kidneys are not properly functioning, then these symptoms are nature's warning. Something is wrong, therefore, it is reasonable that nature has provided the remedy and that remedy is Herb Extract, formerly called Herb Juice, made from nature's herbs. The liquid is the extract from Cascara Bark, Senna Leaves, Gentian Root, Jalap, Rhubarb, combined with other valuable medical ingredients properly blended in one of the largest laboratories in America. This Herbal Extract Remedy is said to be the most effective yet discovered for all ailments where free action of the bowels is necessary. If you have any of the symptoms named above, and no energy, no vitality, no appetite, feel sluggish, you're weak, run-down, under weight, bad complexion, easy to take cold, your entire system may need cleansing. Calomel is a mineral and poisonous. Herb Extract is nature's remedy, purely vegetable and harmless. Effective laxative, quick results, thoroughly cleanses intestinal tract. Esteemed Virginia woman writes: "Herb Extract brought me perfect health after other medicines failed." Prominent Houston, Texas, city official writes: "Before I started taking Herb Extract I suffered every day with indigestion, had to take soda. Have taken three bottles Herb Extract, can now eat anything without discomfort." You don't need any pills with this medicine. Demand the genuine as shown above. Now on sale at all druggists.

11. They batted around in the process with Burk opening the inning with a triple. Big Burrus had relieved Dowdy in centerfield and collected his base knock of the afternoon scoring the Sikeston hurler. Tuffy Crain had listened to the announcers offer of 10 gallons of gas for a home run and connected for a long, hard drive good for a circuit pass.

Happy Foreman left the mound in charge of Michie, who opened his part of the inning by giving Gore a walk. The Cairoite added the last counter of the afternoon on a double by Smetzer.

Bob Mow made his first and only bid for fame in the second inning After laying down a perfect sacrifice which was played to third to cut off Bowman, Mow calmly walked from the bag. Frantic yells from the sidelines informed Mow to "beat it back", but a toss to first settled the question.

Tarver added to the comedy of errors in the eighth, when he took a short cut from first to third without going through the formality of "tagging up" second. He was out when Burrus in centerfield whipped the ball to T. Crain and Crain to Haman at first, following B. Ralph's long knock to midfield.

Even the grandstand entered into the spirit of the day and at one time was afire. Frank Van Horne and other spectators bought one bottle of Dennis Murphy's famous drink and quenched the blaze.

SWEDEY HIGGINS HURT BY TRUCK

MAGGIE KERN, MOREHOUSE GIRL, SLIGHTLY INJURED.

CAPE GIRARDEAU TRUCK PLOWS INTO PARTY AT BUFFINGTON.

"Swedey" Higgins, 20 years old, received a fractured back, and Miss Margaret Kern, 19, of Morehouse, was slightly hurt Thursday night about 7:15 o'clock when a "Bamby bread" truck driven by V. L. Swindell of Cape Girardeau, struck a new Foard roaster near Buffington, west of Morehouse on Highway 60.

Walter Layton of the Home Oil Company, East Prairie and Presley Foley, 17 years old, owner of the car, also of East Prairie, escaped with slight injuries.

Higgins called Fred Beal, sheriff of Stoddard County immediately after the accident and gave his assistance to officers in attempting to straighten out the matter.

The injured were brought to Sikeston and received treatment at the Emergency Hospital. This morning, Dr. Kendig stated that the condition of Higgins was satisfactory. Miss Kern was discharged from the hospital.

Stories of the accident conflict. Both parties mutualy accused the the other of being intoxicated. Charges of this nature were not pressed, however, and no arrests had been made by Saturday evening.

Higgins and his party insist that they had stopped the Ford roadster facing east on Highway 60 and were repairing a puncture when the bread truck hit the front part of the auto.

Mr. Swindell stated to a Standard representative Saturday that he could not explain the accident in any other terms other than that he probably "dozed off" and thus rammed into the small parked car. "I had been on the road since three o'clock that morning and was getting pretty sleepy by seven o'clock that night" he stated. He denied having taken a drink.

The injured lad lives at Star Pine, Ky., and was visiting friends in East Prairie.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON GAINS 2055 BY CENSUS

Census returns as reported by Carl F. Bloker, supervisor of Census for this district reports Sikeston city as shown in the April count as being 5668, as compared with 3613 on January 1, 1920. No. 1 Ward gave 1,120; No. 2, 1566; No. 3, 1601; No. 4, 1382.

The town of Diehlstadt gave 163 in April, 1930, against 196 on January 1, 1920.

Sikeston city has shown the largest increase of any city in its class in all Southeast Missouri, Located as we are at the cross roads of two concrete highways and the center of one of the best agricultural sections to be found anywhere, there is no reason why Sikeston will not continue to grow.

Mars. C. L. Blanton, Sr., is quite ill from Trench Mouth that she has been afflicted with for the past week. She is confined to her bed and suffers greatly.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Hulick, who have been visiting in the W. C. Bowman home, were entertained in the P. A. Bowman home Saturday evening. They left for their home Sunday morning.

SIKESTON DEFEATS OSCEOLA SUNDAY

ARKANSAW INDIANS FAILED TO SHOW OLD-TIME VIM.

SIKESTON GOES TO THE INDIAN VILLIAGE NEXT SUNDAY.

The Sikseton baseball season started with a rush Sunday afternoon at Fairground Park, when the locals turned the Osceola Braves invasion into a rout with a score of 11-3. In the process of collecting the eleven markers, Tom Malone's men collected sixteen hits and drove "Happy Foreman, Indian hurler from the mound. Tuffy Crain's circuit smash in the eighth turned the trick, and 'Happy" gave way to "Red" Michie, formerly a local moundsman.

Webb Burk, Memphis right hander, who made his first debut Sunday on the mound for Sikeston, allowed the invaders five scattered hits good for three tallies, none of them earned.

The "kid" as he was immediately nicknamed on the Sikeston bench, seemed to have plenty of "stuff" and speed. Moltedo, leadoff man for Osceola, and rated as one of the most clever hitters, faced Burk five times during the afternoon and batted a straight zero. Fleitz of the visitors alone managed to connect for a double, the remaining four hits being singles.

Neither team displayed midseason form Sunday. Fielding was uniformly raged with Sikeston holding the margin on errors. The locals managed to muff seven to five for Osceola. While the old standby, Smetzer, is credited with "booting" three chances, he redeemed himself by making two spectacular out-of-territory foul catches.

Neither team scored in the first frame. In the second, however, Haman, Bowman and Shorty Crain connected for safeties. Mow rolled out, Foreman to B. Ralph, and Bowman was thrown out at second. Bark scored Crain with a single, Haman having crossed the platter on an error by Howerton. Burk was thrown out at second by Foreman, but two tallies had been scored.

Osceola went out in 1-2-3 order in the second.

The locals had their big inning in the third, with Dowdy, and Tuffy Crain singled and advanced on a perfect bunt laid down the third baseline by Gore. Smetzer singled to score Dowdy and Crain, and Gore added his talley when Knox bungled a blow. Haman popped out to B Ralph at first.

Bowman singled, but was out at second on a roller to third laid down by Shorty Crain. Mow rolled down to first and was out unassisted by B. Ralph.

An error at short gave the visitors their first break of the afternoon with Foreman the lucky man. He was out of the next play, however, when Fleitz rolled down to Crain at short. Tarver singled, and Fleitz gave the visitors their first counter, when Knox rolled down to second. Tarver added another on Gore's error, and Howerton popped out to Haman at first. The Indians did not score again until the eighth when Fleitz crossed the plate after his long double to left.

Burk added one to the Sikeston total in the fourth. He doubled and advanced to third on Foreman's error, and was scored by Dowdy, who lined one out for a single.

Again in the eighth, the locals broke away on a scoring spree, adding four tallies to bring the total to

There has been so much complaint among the adult drys that the Literary Digest poll on the Eighteenth Amendment was unfair, that The Standard is considering sending out twenty million cards to the babies of the land to find out if they are wet or dry.

Acute appendicitis is not always fatal and sometimes the appendix has arms and legs.

Sikeston has a right to feel proud of the increase in her population of 2055 during the past ten years. Many small cities, and most of the towns and villages, have lost in that time which shows that but few will be left on the map in the next ten years. Sikeston will hold what she has and will make another substantial gain when the census of 1940 is taken though we will likely be among those who have passed on.

After all, when business is good everywhere, when folks have money, when crops are bringing good returns it is easy to collect money. When times are N. S. G., despite propaganda to the contrary, it is not so easy to make the mare go round.

We are glad to hear that Sikeston is to get a postoffice building, but we would like for someone to show us just where the government is to profit by the investment. The building will cost $70,000. At four per cent interest the same money would earn $2800 annually and it is certain that the best building in Sikeston of the size necessary for a postoffice could be rented for $200 per month. In a rented building the government would look to the landlord for repairs, but under the proposed plan the postoffice department must bear this expense also, which will run the annual cost well in excess of $3000. Building a few federal buildings over the country to bring about artificial prosperity will prove expensive in the end.

The above from the Jackson Cash Book is true. It has been the policy of the Government for many years to erect postoffice buildings in a limited number of small cities in order that the tax payers might at least have a building that they could point to with pride and see where a small amount of their taxes were used. Large cities, rivers and harbors, the Army and the Navy get large appropriations, but small cities only get to pay their taxes, hence get small buildings occasionally as a monument to a great and growing country.

Near Paraguold, Ark., a gob of real farm relief came to Joe H. Fletcher, when he sold an 820-meteorite that fell from the heavens February 17 last. The chunk sold for $3600, which was probably more than the farm was worth. This relief came from on high and the Republican Administration is in no way responsbile for it.

We have an idea that Ruth Hanna McCormick will have a hard time explaining how and why it was necessary to spend $252,572 to secure the Republican nomination for United States Senate in Illinois. If elected, she will likely be unseated. Her illustrius father knew how to make presidents and elect Senators, but that was back in the good old days when some folks weren't so blamed particular.

The day after the bond election it rained. The day after the baseball game it rained. Let's pull off something about every ten days in order to invite the rain until we have enough to sprout the corn and cotton and keep things growing.

Agriculture has won its first great victory in the adjustment of differences between the Senate and House tariff bills. The House bill put a tariff of $1.75 a ton on grindstones; the Senate bill put grindstones on the free list; the conference committee voted with the Senate. So, grindstones will be admitted free of any duty whatever. Just think of that when you go out on a summer's day to sharpen the bush-hook to clean out that nasty fence-row on the back lot. No need to spare the stone; no excuse to turn off the boy-power because it threatens to run down; no toll to pay to keep alive an infant grindstone industry. And remember this important action of our legislators, touching as it does every farm when in debate some fellow makes the sweeping assertion that our government never does anything for our farmers. This great saving on grindstones will keep many a farmer from the poorhouse and put comfort and luxuries in countless farm homes. Our enthusiasm runs out of bounds; we lack words to celebrate this: agriculture's first great victory in the final roll-call on the tariff!—Daily Livestock Reporter.

A teacher in south Missouri accused by a preacher of helping a man drink a quart of whiskey then acting affectionate and crazy towards him must have consumed a different brand of liquor from that drunk by a La Plata man which is said to have caused him to go home and beat up his wife, the mother of an eight-day old baby. A different brand of teacher and preacher from the La Plata type is also shown in the case. The preacher boasts that he is a reformed drunkard and attacks the character of the teacher who then sues him for libel. Also, there exists a different form of morals, today, from that of a generation ago according to the pleadings of the teacher's attorney, who stated that "you can't judge the language of libel in this day by the standards of Puritan. To act affectionate and crazy towards a man is no more than most girls do now every mating season. Before prohibition it was considered pretty bad for a woman to take a drink, but it is common nowadays for women to drink. That's the advancement of civilization. That is, if there is any civilization left". It will probably be found, however, that juries are no different in south Missouri than they are here, and that their decision will follow the line of old-fashioned morals with a tempering of modern justice.—La Plata Home Press.

HOW TOWN MAN WILL SOLVE FARM PROBLEM

Many farmers are discussing with a good deal of interest and more or les skepticism the effort Theodore Gary, multi-millionaire citizen of Kansas City, is about to launch for the solution of the farm problem up in Macon County. Mr. Gary has been arguing that "community farming' is what the situation demands. The experiment he is about to make is to demonstrate the soundness of his theory.

While making a study of the tax problem the former chairman of the Missouri Highway Commission had the problem of land tenancy thrust under his nose. He became interested in the ten men who were employed on his million-dollar estate, Oak Hill, in the outskirts of Macon. On investigation he found that nine of the ten workmen, ranging between 45 and 50 years old, previously had operated their own farms but had lost them in the agricultural deflation.

From that starting point, Mr. Gary has embarked on his plan of "community farming". He does not expect to have it well under way until next year.

Twenty men, including the ten now working on his estate, will be financed by Mr. Gary in his "back to the farm" program. The owner of the Oak Hill estate will buy small tracts of land of less than twenty acres each. He will stock them with cows pigs and chickens and provide the necessary farming machinery. An agricultural expert will be advisor. Mr. Gary's housekeeper will provide the wives with the training to make them more efficient as farmers' helpers. The farmers will be required to follow the rules of farming laid down by Mr. Gary's overseers.

The community farmers will be employed half time on Mr. Gary's estate. The other half they will be free to work for themselves. The farms are to be near Oak Hill.

"A farm is the best place a working man can hope to obtain a comfortable living with pleasant surroundings for himself and family" Mr. Gary said, commenting on his plan. "The big thing is to get a man in the mental attitude of desiring to make a comfortable living. I believe if large employers generally would try this plan, they would go a long way in solving the unemployment problem and bring comfort and happiness to many working men now struggling for a living in the City"

"The sorest spot in America today economically", Mr. Gary pointed out "is the decline in land values, and the consequent lack of loanable funds for agricultural borrowers. There is plenty of money for everything except farming".

As one of the controlling factors in the Commerce Trust Company, the largest bank in Kansas City, Mr Gary is in a good position to judge.

On tangible property in Missouri, or real estate, 93 per cent of the taxes are collected, Mr. Gary pointed out. "What effect does that have on property values?" he asked "From 1912 to the end of 1928 farm lands in Missouri declined 29 per cent on the basis of the present purchasing power of the dollar. "Twenty per cent of the return from land in Missouri goes to pay taxes. We are better off than other States in the farming belt, where the average is 30 per cent for taxes".

HERE YOU ARE, MR. HOOVER

There is only one way in which Mr. Hoover can quiet the tumult in the Senate over the Supreme Court appointments, and that is to cast about for a liberal judge.

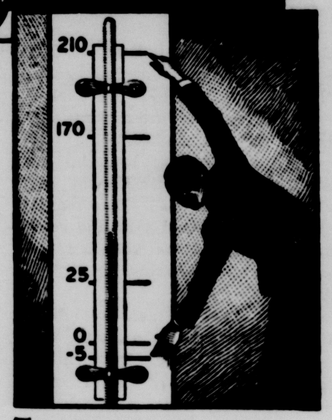

We have found the man for him. He is Judge W. H. D. Green of Van Buren, Mo., who has just ruled that to trade a gallon of moonshine whisky for a horse does not constitute a violation of the prohibition laws. When Charles Johnson, farmer, admitted in court that he had traded a gallon of liquor for a horse to Kinot Reed, a neighbor, Judge Green dismissed the case upon the theory that the deal constituted a trade and could not therefore be construed as a sale of whisky.

Our advice to Mr. Hoover is to withdraw Judge Parker, friend of yellow dog contracts, and grab this friend of the white mule.—Post-Dispatch.

When animals refuse to eat sweetclover pasture it is usually because the growth is too rank before they have acquired a taste for it. There is no trouble in getting livestock to eat sweetclover if they are turned on it before the growth is big and tough.

Even "dyed-in-the-wool" oil engineers get a thrill out of this test . . .

THIS experiment proves that New Iso-Vis does not "break down" in the crankcase. A special filter removes the crankcase dirt from "used" New Iso-Vis and the oil itself is exactly the same as when freshly distilled.

THE LONG lubricating range of New Iso-Vis covers the whole thermometer. Some oils are defeated by heat—others by cold. New Iso-Vis fights friction at both extremes.

IT IS a simple experiment, but the dramatic results excite even oil experts themselves.

A quart of "used" New Iso-Vis, black with the usual crankcase dirt, is drained from a car after many hundreds of miles of driving. Five minutes later we have a quart of oil that might have come straight from the refinery. It has the clear amber color. The same heavy body.

Yet it is exactly the same quart of oil that was just taken from the crankcase!

What has happened is simply that a special clay filter has removed the dust and dirt. This is one of the many tests that prove beyond question that New Iso-Vis will not thin out in the crankcase.

New Iso-Vis has other important advantages. It brings a radical reduction of carbon deposit. And it gives lubrication over a wider range of temperatures. This important combination of qualities means less wear and longer life for your engine.

New Iso-Vis Motor Oil is on sale at all Standard Oil dealers and service stations.

New Polarine is also affected by our new refining processes—giving it an efficiency which is exceeded only by New Iso-Vis. The price is 25 cents a quart.

Black walnut planted in unused or "waste places" on the farm or in good-sized openings in woodlands is likely to make a profitable crop Rough, hilly places where the soil is good but otherwise poorly adapted to crops, large fence corners, fence rows hollows, ravines, stream banks, and large pockets of good soil among rocky out-croppings in fields and pastures are excellent places for growing black walnut. Do not let sycamore, soft maple, alder, willow, beech, black gum, dogwood, or worthless shrubs occupy such places, says the Forest Service. Black walnut yields edible nuts and produces useful and valuable timber.

ROAD COMMITTEE HARD AT WORK ON 61 BETWEEN BENTON-SIKESTON, FINISH MAY 10

With the deadline on the right-of-way for Highway 61 from the Tanner road near Sikeston to a point on the Schwartz farm south of Benton approaching rapidly, the Sikeston road committee has been hitting the ball lively since Monday, April 28.

It is understood that orders have gone forth from the powers that be to have the right-of-way matter completed by May 10, this Saturday. It is believed that this is necesary to include the stretch of 61 in the proposed June lettings. With that in mind, the Sikeston committee has been busy interviewing property owners from Benton south. The stretch from the Tanner road to the connection with Highway 60 will not be completed for the time being.

The following have been devoting time to the right-of-way matter: C. E. Brenton, Ed Fuchs, Emanuel F. Schorle, C. C. White, C. F. Bruton, Ed Coleman, Wallace Applegate, C. H. Denman, Tom Scott, Frank Van Horne, Frank Emerson, Lee Bowman Frank Mount, Tharon Stallings, John Young, Lyle Malone, Joe Matthews and Ernest Harper.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Matthews and family visited over the week-end with Mrs. Matthews' sister, Mrs. David Thompson and husband of Caruthersville.

Miss Ella Helen Smith and J. A. McWorth, with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. J. Berthe of New Madrid had dinner with the L. T. Berthe family in Charleston, Sunday evening.

I WANT to talk to ay to the women who have gotten the habit of being fat. Once you were nicely proportioned, and then somehow you let yourself go to a settled, middle aged accumulation of excess fat. You used to be alarmed about your growing waist line, and then after a bit you sort of accepted it as your fate, and now you're rather complacent about it, even though it means that no amount of dress-making seems to give you a smart, well-dressed look.

Of course it takes will power to stick to a diet, even if it is a mild one. If you say "Oh, what's the use?" after a couple of days, or if you follow the diet every other day or so, you'll never recover your trim figure. What I do is put one of my slim pictures on my mirror and say firmly to myself, "Nancy, that's your model, get back to it."

Just think of the splash you will make when your diet is over and you join your friends minus fifteen pounds! You should lose three pounds, this week, you know.

I am going to give you a balancing exercise to add to the four you are already doing. Maybe your knees will crack a little bit at first, but don't let that discourage you. Do it slowly, and try to keep your balance. Start by standing at attention, holding your wand by the ends. At the count of one, bend the knees and lower the body until you are just about sitting on your heels. Then, at the count of two, raise your body to position.

But be sure to find out if your doctor approves of your going on a diet. He knows your fitness better than you do. I think I'll include a little advice on how to stay young next time. Every woman is interested in that subject!

NEW MADRID DISTRICT WINS DRAINAGE SUIT

Poplar Bluff, May 4.—Circuit Judge C. L. Ferguson, handing down an opinion in the Stoddard-New Madrid Drainage District controversy yesterday made permanent an injunction against District No. 44, in Stoddard County, restraining that district from enlarging a drainage ditch connecting with a ditch in District No. 28, New Madrid County.

The controversy centered about a contract, made in 1904, which granted District 44 permission to connect its ditch with one in New Madrid County.

Land owners of New Madrid County secured the injunctin on the grounds that water from the enlarged District 44 ditch would cause the smaller New Madrid ditch to overflow and inundate a large section of agricultural land.

The case was argued before Judge Ferguson two weeks ago.

In his opinion Judge Fegruson said he could find nothing in the law, which would warrant one drainage district dumping surplus water into another district without compensatin or contract.

Even with the old 1904 contract still in effect, the Judge held, District 44 had no right to enlarge its ditch.

An appeal will be takeen by the Stoddard district.

HOME EC. GIRLS WRITE ABOUT SILKS AND RAYON

Last week members of the Domestic Science class of the local high school gave their friends, the Sikeston public, a few pointers on the care of clothing. This week the class is explaining the difference between silk and rayon.

Silk and rayon resemble each other in so many ways, that they are often confused. Each have distinctive characteristics. Rayon is less durable and should be less expensive.

Rayon yarn is heavier, coarser glassier and more easily broken, especially when wet.

The simpliest way to distinguish between the two fibers is to burn them. When pure silk s burned, it burns slowly with a flickering flame and the odor of burning feathers or hair. It forms beads or glossy balls which gives the appearance of having melted. Rayon flames up instantly with a yellow flame which looks and smells like paper.

A piece of white rayon material remains white after repeated washing but silk will turn yellow from either washing or age.

Rayon feels wiry but lifeless. Silk has life in it. For example, when silk is wadded in the hand, it fills the hand and tries to push the hand open. Rayon is more like wire screening, it is hard to pick up and springs, but does not have life.

Mrs. Robertson of San Diego, California, formerly Mrs. Maude Stubbs of this city, arrived Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Ruskin Cook. The Odor of the Chrysanthemums

By BEATRICE VANDEGRIFT

(Copyright)

JOHN SOMERS stood a moment before the open door of a florist's and breathed deeply. The cool, clean, wintry odor of chrysanthemums swept to his nostrils and brought an ache to his throat. It was just a year ago that lovely, gay Rosalie Moore had told him that she never wanted to see him again.

They were coming home in the crush after a football game, her small, pretty face lifted to his among the scores of nondescript countenances that pressed meaningiessly around him. The yellow chrysanthemum that he had given her curled against the shoulder of her gray squirrel coat, a few of its petals slowly dropping to be crushed by the unheeding feet that followed.

She had never seemed so gay or so loving. She pressed close to him as if for protection and answered the touch of his hand on her arm with a quiver.

Between the halves, in the small respite from the excitement of the game, she had whispered that she would marry him. After the game, at the door of the chic little apartment that she shared with another girl, she had said that she wouldn't—that her career meant too much.

John argued heatedly and old-fashionedly about women and their careers. He wanted her terribly, safe in his home, just as his wife. He loved her too much to share her with an oak desk in a cold-blooded advertising house. She had laughed disdainfully at his views. Then she melted a bit. To compromise, she would marry him if he let her keep on working.

John answered passionately that he wanted a wife, not a part-time sweetheart. At that she said coldly that he had better go. She never wanted to see him again. After he had gone, she buried her bright blond head in her futuristic sofa cushions and cried.

John, standing before the florist's and breathing in his dead romance with the living scent of the chrysanthemums, did not know that she had wept. He only knew that she had dismissed him haughtily and that he had been too proud ever to seek her out again. But the woody, wintry fragrance of the yellow flowers impelled him to go into the little shop and order a dozen to be sent to her address. He left the address of his own apartment and taxied home, thoughtful and impatient.

In two hours the telephone rang and the florist's voice announced regretfully that there was no Miss Rosalie Moore living at the address he had given and that no one seemed to know where she had gone. What should they do with the chrysanthemums?

"Oh, send 'em to some hospital," ordered John Somers drearily. "Don't forget to take off my card."

In a yellow-walled semi-private room of a city hospital, Rosalie Moore was surrounded by the soft-footed tread of nurses.

One of them, outside her door, listened respectfully to the doctor.

"She should be pulling out of it," he said thoughtfully. "It was a pretty bad accident, of course, but not this bad."

"She doesn't seem to care about anything, doctor," whispered the nurse. "She just lies there and doesn't try."

"Hasn't she any people?"

The nurse shook her head.

"Well, try to snap her out of it, anyhow," ordered the young physician. "There isn't a reason in the world she shouldn't get well."

"Maybe a few of these good-looking flowers will cheer her up," ventured a passing probationer, stopping with an armful of curly yellow chrysanthemums. "Let's try 'em."

She arranged them attractively beside the white iron bed of the listless girl who did not even turn her head. Yet, after a while, their clean autumn fragrance began to penetrate her tired senses . . . stimulate her memory. . . . A year ago. The football game, the close, pressing crowds and John who loved her. She loved a man who loved him away, but too proud ever to call him back.

The chrysanthemums swept her mind clean of pain and listlessness. Did he send these flowers in remembrance? There was no card. But perhaps he had sent them as a silent token of his love—if he still loved her.

"Nurse," she said faintly but with spirit, "would you mind calling up Trafalgar 6140 and asking Mr. John Somers, if he's there, to come and see me?"

On the way to the telephone the nurse met the little probationer again in the hall, her arms laden with another batch of bright yellow chrysanthemums.

"More of 'em," she sighed. "The eleventh dozen to come in here today . . . some rich woman sends them."

Church Pigeon Messenger

J. Palastanga, verger at the garrison church of Holy Trinity, Windsor, England, has trained a pigeon to notify his wife when he will be home to dinner after service. He takes the bird to church in a little basket and when he learns the rector's instructions for the services, he sends a message by the pigeon to Mrs. Palastanga. The pigeon was born in the tower of the church and its training began when it could fly.

Modernizing Starts Wi

Marked Changes Possible In The Average House

Interior Decorating One Phase of Effort

The Home Modernizing Movement is calculated to improve the home both inside and out. Remodeling may be necessary in many cases where the exterior of the residence still bears the stamp of the architecture of 20 years ago. Yet modernizing rather than the more limited remodeling is the aim of this campaign.

Modernization is an all embracing word. Your home may have the model lines that are now in vogue yet contain many accessories that are out of date or the home may be lacking in those conveniences that have recently come into such generally accepted use.

Livability of Home Depends on Modernization

Home modernizing really starts with the interior of the home. It is here that the home life functions and it is only right that the home be equipped with the newly devised equipment that makes living so worth while.

Even though the exterior lines of the dwelling be smartly up to date, now is the time to thoughtfully consider the interior to see if you are receiving full satisfaction from it.

Marked changes are possible in the average house. The layout of the rooms is often inconvenient and unsatisfactory. Certain rooms may need enlarging or alternations. A lack of closets is a handicap to the housekeeper. The stairs to the upper floor may be inaccessible or narrow.

Styles Change in Furnishings

Consider also the furnishings of the home. Styles change in furniture and the parlor set of fifteen years ago is now out of date. Carpets, covering the entire floor, were necessary in the days of soft wood but nowadays have been discarded in favor of rugs. Chinese or Oriental rugs may be beyond the limits of the family purse, but domestic rugs of similar pattern and most artistic are available today.

The arrangement of the furniture is new. Years ago the chairs and tables were placed along the walls with stiff formality, but now they scattered around the rooms in a studied disarray. A cozy, homey atmosphere is secured which is not possible with the more formal arrangement.

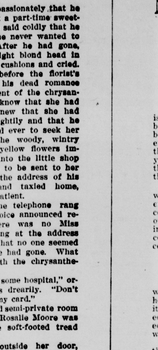

New home accessories are constantly being placed on the market. While the average home can purchase furniture at infrequent intervals, new effects can be secured by frequent changes of lamp shades, curtains and drapes, table covers, cushions and the like. It is possible to keep abreast of the times with these moderate priced accessories which make the home always bright and fresh.

New Types of Wall Decorations

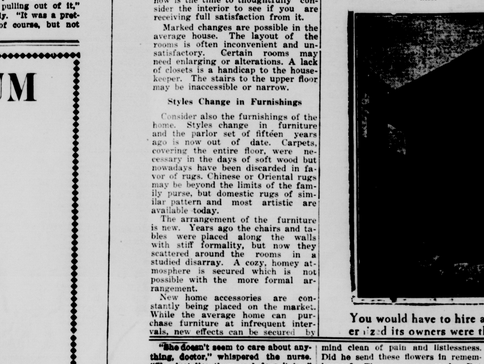

Changes in wall decorations are also another angle of home modernizing. Lately canvass covered walls, painted with several coats of flat paint, have been popular. The standard wallpaper, however, comes out each year with new designs and color effects and will always remain in vogue.

Many newly constructed homes use no wall covering, the plaster being tinted and finished in a rough yet striking texture.

Plastic paints with which effects in modified texture can be achieved a finish half way between the smooth plaster and the very rough textured effects. The resulting finish has been described as combining the excellent of the untextured painted wall with the distinction of hard worked plaster. It is universally suitable for the decoration of side walls.

Laws Could Add to Personal Comfort

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor:

Here's a copy of the message I am sending to congress and maybe they might not dast give it out to the papers so here's a copy of it:

To Congress:

Well, ladys and gents, I realise it ain't customary for nobody only the president to send you boys a message but still and all they's no law vs. nobody sending you one a specially a man that come as close to the white house as myself, and might of got all the way in if I hadn't of left Washington a few minutes before the Coolidges decided to make it a amusement park, at least judgeing from some of the birds that did get in I don't see how they could of barred this baby.

And besides if you boys is anything like our last congress a message will go just as big whether it comes from me or the president or the ouija board, so anyway I am going to write and point out a few things that needs tension.

Well, gents, you know the old say that people that lives in a glass house shouldn't drink out of a bottle so the place to commence makeing reforms is right where you are at, namely the nation's capital, and I don't know no way you can make a better beginning than appt. a committee to attend all the ball games in Washington this season and find out if the home team is really playing their best.

And the next thing to do is to give the town Pullman telephone booths so a person can ring a nights rest while waiting for the wrong number and thus kill 2 birds with one nickel beside getting your shoes shined.

"Please use this rag to wipe your razor as one small cut destroys a towel."

"Guests without baggage 25 cts. extra for meals served in booth."

"Stop; have you anything left?"

Pass a bill providing for the president not to leave Washington during his incumbrance as they are libel to run wild when they get away from home and go to gay Paree and buck the Tiger or something. Presidents, of course, like to travel because they get 10 cts. per mile which nets them about 2 cts. profit at the present rates minus the amusement tax on a upper but if they claim they can't get along without some such kind of a get rich quick scheme, why allow them a dime for every mile they stay on the fairway and I guess by the end of 4 yrs. they will have enough saved up to buy ½ interest in a milk chocolate.

I also wished you would put up the names of the different govt. bldgs. in big letters so as when a man is showing his Mrs. the town she won't act like she has him subpoenaed.

Borrow a 16 yr. old dependent child somewheres and give it to the bird that figured out the personal exemption allowance on the income tax and make him support it on $200 a year.

Pass a rule to permit smoking in the senate and house so as you boys won't keep asking teacher if you can leave the rm.

So much for local legislation and now we come to matters that effects the whole U. S. States and the first thing to do is pass another amendment because it takes in both the 18th and 19th amendments to have this new amendment provide that Election Day is Kings X from prohibition so a man will have some place to hang around while the madam is spoiling ballots.

Repeal the truants law so a person won't have to go all spring and fall without a caddy.

Repeal the law vs. the rabbit punch in boxing. This punch is a blow that lands at the Base of a fighter's brain and it looks to me that the man that lands it instead of being disqualified ought to be given a seat in the hall of fame along with Columbus and Admiral Peary.

No ½ fare minded congress wants to show partiality towards either one of the 2 big govt. war schools so another sporting event that should ought to be laid on the shelf is the service game. This saves them the trouble of getting rid of the tickets. Pass a law vs. men wearing clothes which don't benefit nobody but the Chinaman. Or if it looks like there was too much opposition abolishing this quaint custom a together, at least leave us have a appropriation so as when we get called up and ast to dinner you have to go through no all day of the Marne deciding if you won't.

Make some kind of a universal law in regards to hats in co-ed circles. The way it is now a man is all right if he stays in one town but the minute he goes visiting he is all wrong.

For inst. if you are in Chicago keep your hat on unless the elevator is a hotel or a department store. In N. Y. city you also take the hat in a apt. bldg. providing the janitor ain't your own wife or a relative. In places like Washington you can't expose yourself in elevators of any kinds and when I and the madam are on a sight-seeing trip to the different floors of office bldgs. I discovered I was the only gent in the car wearing covered egg and felt even slightly silly over.

These is a few of the needed legislations, boys, and I wished you would take them up at once and see what you can do.

Respectfully yours,

Will Rogers

Interior of the Home

ONCE A GRIMY COTTAGE

Modernized Cottage Now Smart Looking Bungalow

Sweeping Lines Enhance Beauty of Dwelling

After contrasting the two houses shown to the left, doubting Thomases who believe that they are not the same are invited to cast an eagle eye at the house next door, found at the right in each picture.

That the house next door is the same is plainly evident by the group of three windows, and the gable end. The points of contact are evident and prove that these before and after illustrations show what modernization means to the exterior lines of a house.

Once a Lowly Cottage

The smart-looking bungalow at the top of the page was once the lowly cottage shown below it. The sweeping roof lines and arched entrance reveal the spirit of today—a far cry from the ginger-bread adorned architecture of the early nineties.

When the owner of the cottage decided to invest in modernization, he ingructed the contractor, first of all, to get rid of the old fashioned front porch with its ugly trimming.

In its place he devised a plain little entry way covered by an extension of the roof which sweeps down in a fascinating curve. An arched entrance with a shingled column supports the extremity of the roof.

Stained Shingles Used

The plain clap-boarding of the older structure has been superceded by shingle sides which add so much to the homey intimate atmosphere of this bungalow. Incidently stained shingles, stucco, or brick veneer are popular siding for small houses and permit effective color schemes.

A ventilator with horizontal louvres allows the entrance of air into the attic, insuring a draft in hot summer weather so that heated air will not accumulate and warm the rooms below.

The large fixed bay window that lighted the front room of the house was torn away when the building was modernized. A broad opening filled with two sliding windows now occupies the place. Quaintly paneled wooden shutters flank each window opening at the front. Shutters of this type are usually distinctive and aid in setting the house apart from its neighbors.

Interior Also Modern

The interior of the house is as modern as its exterior. The various rooms of the bungalow have been made up-to-date and every convenience that will add to the comfort and convenience of the occupants is found.

Like most old houses soft wood floors had been used in each room. These floors were relaid with hardwood and waxed to bring out their rich effects.

Electrical outlets are found in each room so that floor lamps can be used without cords reaching to the center cluster of hanging lights as was necessary before modernization. The fixtures of the center cluster of lights has been made smartly up-to-date, the old fashioned combination gas and electric fixtures being discarded.

A new heating plant in the basement, a modern appearing tub and shower in the bath, a colored gas range and electric refrigerator in the kitchen comprise a few of the touches of modernism that came when the old place was made up to date.

The experiences of this owner are not unique. Hundreds upon hundreds of dwellings just as hopeless looking have made up to the minute when modernized.

The speeping roof lines and attractive entry-way of this galow speaks of up-to-date architecture. No one would ect that it was modernized from the weatherbeaten single y house shown below at the left.

Electrical Outlets Necessary

Chang- es in design are frequent and the cluster must be renewed occasionally if the room be modern.

Each room of the house has electrical accessories peculiar to it. Outlets are always necessary if full service is to be secured.

Floor lamps are found in many rooms of the house. In the bedroom will be used electric warming pads, heaters and bed lamps. The dining room needs outlets for electric cooking fixtures, such as toasters, waffle irons, grills and percolators, since many housewives prepare some dishes at the table.

In the kitchen outlets waist-high are convenient and may be used when electricity is used for cooking. Many housewives iron in the kitchen and outlets must be available for this service.

ntrol Erosion by Deep Plowing

o Helps to Keep Hillsides Planted in Hay and Pasture Crops.

rosion of the soil not only cuts up y hilly farms with gullies, shes" or ravines, but it also causes washing away of much valuable t food.

rosion depends upon four things— distribution of the rainfall, character of the soil, the slope, and the station.

rosion can be prevented in many nces by increasing the absorbing er of the soil through deep plow- and subsurface drainage, manage the surface of side hills so as to cause the water, when it must run on the surface, to flow through channels of the least possible fall, and keeping hillsides in hay and pasture as much as possible.

It is advisable when plowing hillsides to work crosswise of the slope rather than up and down and it is best to throw the furrow slice up hill, as this returns the soil to a certain extent as used, and on account of the position of the furrow slice permits a larger amount of the water to find its way into the soil than is the case when the furrow slice is turned down hill. A reversible or side-hill plow may be used to advantage. Cultivation should be practiced along the hillside as much as possible rather than up and down, and any small ditch into which water from the cross-rows runs should be protected by grass or by sowing oats.

Hillsides can be further protected by alternating long narrow strips of cultivated crops with grain and hay. Terraces and channels may be developed at intervals on steep hillsides to control the flow of the water when cultivated crops are to be grown.

Ravines and water courses can be protected by stones which to a large extent prevent the removal of the soil, or by grass, the roots of which hold the soil. Sometimes flumes of wood or metal are used in places where the fall of the ditches is steepest. Occasionally the course of the ditch is dammed with wire and brush which catches and holds the soil.

Overdo Evening Feeding Rather Than Underdo It

It is better to overdo the matter of evening feeding a little than to slight it. If a little grain is left in the litter, it will be eagerly scratched out in the morning.

Great care should be taken, however, so to feed that the straw is scratched absolutely free of grain at least once a day. In following this particular routine this should be the condition at noon.

The really skilled feeder is the one who so handles the ration that he constantly piques the appetite of his fowls, making them scratch large amounts of feed with relish, yet never giving quite all they would like to consume.

Commercial Fertilizer Boosted Michigan Crops

A recent survey in Michigan showed the advantage of the use of commercial fertilizer on five staple crops. From one hundred to seven hundred farmers were interviewed in respect to the experiences they had with each crop. The addition of fertilizer increased corn yields from 36 to 47.5 bushels per acre of 200 farms, on 100 farms potato yields were raised from 115 bushels to 173 bushels. Wheat yields jumped from 16.5 bushels to 27.4 bushels on 712 farms. The increase for oats was from 38.6 bushels to 52.8 bushels on 344 farms. With beans 114 farmers stated that their crops averaged 13.2 bushels without fertilizer and 17.7 bushels with the fertilizer treatment. Other observations seem to support these findings.

Agricultural Hints

The sweetening of soils is one of the greatest farm problems.

Hauling out the manure aids in keeping the surroundings of the dairy barn clean and sanitary.

There are as many flavors of honeys as there are varieties of apples and many shades and colors.

Alfalfa requires a sweet soil and it also requires a soil capable of growing at least 40 bushels of corn per acre.

New York and Pennsylvania beekeepers are likely to prefer honey from buckwheat blossoms which has an entirely different flavor.

The leaves are the most nutritious part of alfalfa hay, yet they are often broken off and lost by the ordinary method of harvesting.

Vines alone will do much to cover unpainted buildings, unsightly corners and unlovely fences. In addition, they lend an air of coolness and provide much desired shade in summer.

The hatching season is fast approaching. It is time to mate the breeders. Choose only your best, well matured, vigorous males of good color and type to mate with hens which have survived your cullings.

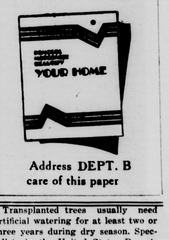

Still Use Roman Roads

The changes which have come over the planning and construction of great highways built or projected across the continent prove that the first builders of roads were the best, according to Thomas S. Bosworth, in the New York Times. The main highways across Europe, many of them still in use today after 2,000 years, remain as monuments to the supreme mechanical genius of the Americans of their day, the old Romans. Not only did they plan their roads on the principle that the straight line is the shortest between two points, but they built them so well that, with minor changes, the modern cities of Europe still depend upon them for their communication by automobile.

Transplanted trees usually need artificial watering for at least two or three years during dry season. Specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture recommend that such trees be given a good watering once or twice a week rather than a little water every day. A mulch of straw or leaves around the tree will help to conserve the supply of water in the soil.

"To smoke after."

Dry leaders who were so gleeful over the Literary Digest poll and so sure it reflected public sentiment against Al Smith two years ago are very sure the wet and dry poll now being taken is a delusion and a snare. To the general public, however, it proves two things. First, that on a popular vote prohibition would not get a popular verdict. Second, that religious prejudice, not dry sentiment, resulted in Al Smith's defeat. The absolute accuracy of two presidential polls taken by the Literary Digest very effectively disarms those who question either the accuracy or fairness of the one now in progress. Lax enforcement more than anything else, we believe, is contributing to the growing dissatisfaction with the 18th amendment.—Paris Appeal.

Old Sol was bearing down for all he was worth Thursday much to the discomfort of very young infants and the sick. Those of us who were able to be up and around spent most of the day saying, "Yes sir, we sure do need a rain". That's a fact, too, thousands of acres have been planted to corn and cotton near here. Some of the crops are just pushing through the ground while others are now being planted. All in all, it seems that a good rain, a real two-inch soaker would mean millions of dollars for this community.

Of all the useless bunk foisted upon a weary public, the custom of introducing a speaker is about the worst. The person who gets that job wears out the audience in trying to arouse their attention, tells all the jokes that the speaker had planned to use, and has everybody wishing they had stayed at home before he gets through. And then, too, why should a speaker be introduced? All of his listeners know his name, what he looks like, and care little about his family history or personal reputation.—Sehlbina Democrat.

MANAGER HERE

Ben E. Topper, above recently appointed manager of the Sikeston branch of the Whiz-Bang Stores Inc., comes to Sikeston from Marianna Ark., having opened the newest addition for the Whiz-Bang Co. there.

Mr. Topper's former home was in Memphis, Tenn.

Topper has been with the Whiz-Bang Stores Co. for sometime and brings to Sikeston a thorough knowledge of the Retail Mercantile business and distribution of merchandise and styles to the buying public gained even a perid of long experience in this field.

The Sikeston branch is one of the leading Whiz-Bang branches in Missouri and Arkansas in the point sales and personnel employed.

Mr. Topper is a married man, having one child, a boy 3 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Topper will make Sikeston their home as soon as arrangements can be made for living quarters.

Well, no wonder there's a slump in the sale of feminine wearing apparel. Since style shoppes have substituted the faces of dead ones for the faces of live ones on their wax models men knock on the purchase of a new dress, on the theory that their wives or daughters may look like the expressionless creatures on whom duds are displayed in show windows. In former days the wax figures had sparkling eyes, rich red lips and that look of unsophistication which men covet for those of their own households. Thinking it was the clothes that made them look that way, the poor brutes encouraged women to buy early and often. Who would want his wife or daughter—or even his neighbor's wife or daughter—to look like such monstrosities as are now seen in shoppe windows?—Paris Appeal.

CONSIDER THE CANDIDATE

The candidate is now abroad in the land. We've seen him. Like the wild onion, and static, and dandelions, and straw hats, and dusty streets, and high prices, and several other things, he's amongst us. You can't forget him, and you can't ignore him and you can't hide from him. He's a part and parcel of our daily life, in considerable numbers until August, and in smaller numbers but greater intensity from ther until November.

It must be a lot of fun to be a candidate, and pretty soon a man who hasn't run for at least one office will be regarded as decidedly inexperienced. If our schools keep on in their present tendency, we expect to see courses offered on "How to Gyp the Voters".

This early in the campaign we notice how anxiously some of the office-seekers approach the boys from the forks of the creek to inquire about the health of grandma and the need of rain. We've heard some of them are even attending church and dropping coins into the collection basket They speak to you clear across the street, and if you have a few brothers and sisters and other relatives they may sign a note for you. A liberal percentage of them will be either for or against prohibition, will either cuss or praise the present administration, and otherwise be just as agreeable as you could possibly require a man to be.

However, you mere voters need not expect a candidate to knock his opponent, no matter how much you may encourage him. Invariably he will say, "I haven't a thing against my opponent, I think he is a good man, and throughout this campaign nobody will ever hear me say a word against him—though I have heard that he whips his wife and that he stole a cow".

But there are more humbugs among the mere voters than among the candidates. A candidate who gets a hundred votes has been previously promised at least a thousand The average voter proudly announces that he will vote for the "best qualified man" and then casts his vote for some bird that gave him a mess of greens, or shook hands with him or bought candy for his kids. The "best qualified man" is often as ignorant as a hog, and as crooked as he knows how to be.

Those of us who merely vote get enthusiastic for the chap who slaps us on the back, brags on us, buys us a cigar and proceeds to lose all semblance of a backbone. The candidate we ought to vote for is probable too busy to pay any attention to us, knows us too well to brag on us and decides if we want a cigar we can buy it ourselves.

American politics is a queer institution, and we get a little cynical whenever we consider it.

Does the following extract from a political announcement, made in a Paris, Ark., newspaper by a candidate for the post of prosecuting attorney in the judicial district which comprises Logan, Franklin and Crawford counties, need comment or explanation?

"As for myself, I am an Arkansas hill-billy born and raised in the Boston Mountains north of Ozark. Outran the dogs on Sunday morning to keep from having my face washed—did my sparking barefooted and or foot—and never saw a train until I was 15 years old.

"I have farmed with a double shovel and Georgia stock and plowed an old mule 19 years old without 'cussin', have taught school, preached and practiced law and am a first-class mechanic, having worked right smart around a sorghum mill.

"I want the office because I think I can make a living out of it and will promise, if elected, to make things so warm for crooks and law violators of all kinds that they will think hell ain't 40 feet from the courthouse.

"I expect to spend the time between now and election on August 12 kissing the babies, bragging on the women's cooking, complimenting the farmers on their crops and warming things up for my opponents".—Fredericktown Democrat.

Cape Giardeau, May 3.—The Ford bowling team, by defeating the Sikeston all-star five, Friday night, on the Sikeston alleys, by a score of 2,289 to 2038, captured the odd game of a curent three-game series. The first team to go from here last Friday night won out, but the Sikeston five turned the tables on the Clown team, Wednesday night, and so the game Friday night was the deciding tussle of the three games. Grebing of the local five was the high scorer for his team with 506 and also was the only one to go over the 500 mark. Van Arsdale was the high scorer for the Sikeston five with 476. The next game between Cape Girardeau and Sikeston will be next Friday night when the International Shoe Co. factory five goes to Sikeston.

The Sikeston bowlers are not content to allow the matter to drop at this stage of the game. On Tuesday night of this week, the State Highway team meets Sensenbaugh's garage team, and Thursday night, the local Shoe Makers will tangle with the Galloway Drug Company Five. An all-star team chosen from high score averages in the two games mentioned will meet the Cape Girardeau International Shoe men Friday night May 9, at the Heisler-Littleton alleys.

The victorious Cape Fords will play here again May 16.

SUMMARY OF TREATY BY FIVE SEA POWERS

By the terms of the naval treaty signed by representatives of the five Powers at London, the United States sroould have achieved parity with Great Britain by the date of its expiration, December 31, 1936. Japan will occupy at that time a ratio of navalval power somewhere between the 5-5-3 conference and the 10-10-7 auxiliary ship ratio sought at the beginning of this conference.

Nine batleships are to be scrapped, or, in the case of three, converted to training vessels, and a five-year capital ship construction holiday is decreed. The ships to be scrapped are, for the United States, the Florida, Utah and either the Arkansas or the Wyoming, while Great Britain will abandon the Bembow, the Iron Duke the Marlborough, the Emperor of India and the Tiger; Japan will scrap the Hiyei.

Under the treaty the United States may have 180,000 tons of large cruisers, Great Britain, 146,800 tons, and Japan 108,400 tons; in small cruisers the United States may have 143,500 tons, Great Britain 192,200 tons, and Japan 100,450 tons; destroyer tonnages are set at, the United States, 150,00 tons; Great Britain, 150,000 tons and Japan, 105,000 tons. Each of the three powers agrees to keep its submarine tonnage within 52,700.

Neither France nor Italy is signatory to that section of treaty limiting cruisers and auxiliary craft, and a safeguarding clause has, therefore been inserted which will allow either of the three Powers to increase its program, the others increasing theirs proportionatley, should a continental naval race develop.

France and Italy signed sections of the treaty fixing a capital ship holiday, prescribing rules of submarine warfare, and relating to less important phases of disarmament.

The Russell-Bradley Missionary Society will meet Friday night at the home of Mrs. Frank Van Horne.

"CAPITOL STTAMER DE LUXE TO RETURN WEDNESDAY, MAY 21

Everyone will remember the beautiful Steamer "J. S.", which stopped at Cairo just recently. Many were amazed at the furnishings and service rendered by this beautiful craft. Her sistership, the "Capitol" Steamer De Luxe, is coming again after an absence of a year, during which time she has been transformed into a beautiful palace—with an entrancing Japanese garden, a ball room representing Jungeland, a romanting roof garden. You enter the Japanese garden as you board the steamer with its waving palms, lanterns, parasols, reed furniture and floral decorations, reproductive of far-off Japan. In this garden Japanese or American dishes will be served you, or you may relax in the easy chairs and enjoy the ride. Ascending the stairs you enter a lobby gaily decorated and furnished with wicker furniture, and there you get the first glimpse of the beautiful Jungle Ball Room, which glitters in the light of the moon, and is decorated with pictures of the most handsome jungle scenes, and shiney clusters of grapes among the russet leaves cover the entire ceiling. RASPBERRIES LARGE AS PLUMS GROW IN HAWAII

The berry picker's dream is a reality in Hawaii, where one stands in the shade and picks raspberries the size of plums or larger from barbless canes.

The Hawaii Agricultural Experiment Station is testing numerous seedlings of this native berry, known locally as the akala berry, in the hope of developing it commercially.

The akala, perhaps more closely related to our salmon berry than to American raspberries, was discovered by Europeans in Hawaii in 1778 and since then has gradually disappeared from the lower elevations. The fruits ordinarilly grow to a diameter of an inch or an inch and a half and the larger ones 2 inches in diameter, according to the annual report of the Hawaii Agricultural Experiment Station. The canes grow 1 or 2 inches in diameter, forming a dense underbrush in the forests.

An added attraction for berry pickers, aside from size of fruits, is the disappearance or barbs from the canes after they are one or two years old.

Hawaiian raspberries have been introduced into California but have never come into general use.

EX-PASTOR INDICTED FOR ABDUCTING GIRLS

St. Louis, May 1.—The Rev. A. L. Shoemaker, former pastor of the Edwards Street Pentecostal Mission, Alton, was indicted Wednesday for abduction of three girls. He is held in default of $9000 bond.

Two of the abduction charges refer to Annette Harris and Edith Hankins, 20 years, former saxophone players in his mission, who disappeared from their homes in Alton last October 11, the same day Shoemaker left, deserting his wife and two small children. The pastor was arrested in Lakeland, Fla., February 12, as he closed a revival service. Authorities there said the young women were occupying an apartment with him, representing themselves as his daughters.

The other indictment charges Shoemaker with abducting Miss Bernice Ford, taking her to Missouri, prior to his disappearance from Alton.

No charges were brought against Shoemaker by the girls, although they testified before the grand jury. One of them fainted during her testimony.

Enticing an unmarried woman from her home constitutes abduction in Illinois and is punishable by imprisonment from one to ten years. Shoemaker was at liberty until yesterday under a $2500 bond set at a preliminary hearing last February 17 on a charge of abducting the two members of his choir.

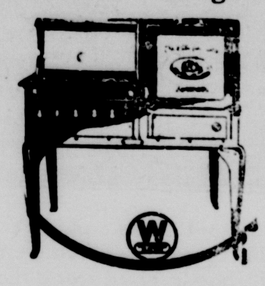

Before storing winter blankets wash them, and put them away with naphthalene flakes between the folds If they are wrapped in thick, heavy wrapping paper and tied with the ends turned in so no moths can get in to lay eggs, they will be safe from moth damage during the warm months.

"Electricity Is Cheap In Sikeston"

Mother's Day May 11th

Electric Range

Electric power has rendered a most prolific and progressive service to Industry---man's field. But its most humane and appealing service has been in home utilities---the development of electrically controled articles which contribute to the woman's comfort, ease of effort and the expediting of her home duties and problems.

It is part of man's obligation to provide these woman-savers---to adopt and apply them to the woman's business of keeping house so that she can conduct her affairs on the same efficient, economical and practical basis as any other business.

How to Buy a Car

A RACING driver's slant on ordinary, everyday automobile driving may seem rather warped in the eyes of the average individual. Yet, when you think about it, why shouldn't a racing driver be in a better position to know about automobiles and driving than the average person?

On the race track, the speed demon crams into a few hours all the experiences that Mr. and Mrs. John Public get in the average year's driving. Things happen faster on the race track. And they happen in such a way as to leave a lasting impression.

On the highway, if a motorist makes a turn too quickly, it generally means a close call with a lamp post or a pole. The same occurrence on a race track usually means serious trouble and the racer who commits this error of judgment may find himself lying in a distant field—in case he ever finds out anything.

Writing for the instruction of the ordinary driver is a large order. I can think of a lot of things I am more capable of doing, but if the motorist reads these, and profits thereby, it is well worth any effort on my part.

In the first place, I have some strong ideas about choosing a car. An automobile should be fitted to the use of the individual, his family and business requirements, and his pocketbook. This can be done, these days. Many people buy high powered, ponderous transportation, when a lighter car would fill their needs and leave money in the bank. Others choose the wrong style of body, while still others risk their necks in a "lot for the money" chariot which is all body and display and which has little, if anything, under the hood.

I believe in a motor as small in horsepower as is consistent with the work it will be called upon to do, on the average.

If my use of a car is mostly in connection with city driving or its congested environs, I want a car that can be easily steered and controlled, with a short wheel base for easy parking. It must have an all-steel body for, in my opinion, this type of body is safer and less liable to squeak and rattle. Its door posts are smaller, thus increasing visibility. And its finish coats are more durable. In fact it is conducive to the main characteristic I seek in a car—long useful life. This type of body can withstand much abuse and if an accident should occur, my chances of escape from injury are considerably increased.

HOME MODERNIZING PROGRAM INTERESTS BUILDING ASSOCIATION

The success or failure of the home modernizing project often depends upon the ability of the home owner to secure needed financial assistance The interest of local financial institutions in the movement is indicative of the response that will come when the home owners approach these organizations for the needed assistance

When interview upon the subject, W. O. Carroll stated that the policy of the organization was to aid home owners to improve the value of their property and that the efforts of the institution would be to encourage home modernization.

"It has been our experience that money invested in improving the home is safe money. The risk is usually small because the value of the property is enhanced by the improvements.

"When a home owner comes to us for money with which to improve his property we feel that he is a good risk and are inclined to look with favor upon his efforts to obtain money. Of course, we have to investigate carefully to see that the property is clear, that the owner is in a position to make payments on the loan and that the money will be actually spent for the purpose intended. These are reasonable precautions and no owner can be offended at our taking them

"The purpose of this organization is to aid the home builder to purcase his own home. While building and owning were first in the plans of the institution, the modernization program of many owners is in line with the general purposes of the association and home owners seeking funds for financing their modernization are welcomed at the offices of this organization".

ASK CITY TO JOIN IN COAL RATE HEARING

Cape Girardeau, May 5.—Under date of April 26th the Railroads serving Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition requesting a general investigation of rates on coal from Illinois Kentucky and Alabama to all points within this territory, and for the reopening of certain cases that have been decided heretofore and which resulted in a material reduction in rates to many points. They have also asked that all cases now pending before the Commission, of which there are many, affecting such coal rates be suspended and consolidated in the general investigation.

Should the Commission grant this request, the rates to your city will be under investigation and unless properly presented to the Commissin, the case may result in general increases hence it is important that your community be represented at the hearing and on brief.

The purpose of this letter is, therefore, to acquaint you with the scope of the pending litigation and to urge upon you the necessity of properly protecting your interests by competent representation at the hearing.

The Carriers have never been satisfied with the order of the Commission in former cases which required them to reduce their rates on coal and it is apparent that their purpose is to convince the Commission the rates should be increased and secure permission to increase them. An increase of fifty cents per ton on all coal moving into the territory involved will mean an additional tax upon the people of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually which the community should not be required to pay.

I shall be very glad to inform you immediately upon receipt of information from the Commissin as to whether they grant the request of the railroads for the investigation sought and in the meantime, if you desire any further information please write us. Southeast Missouri Traffic Bureau.

Nutmeg on apple sauce should be used only when the sauce is to be eaten at once, if it stands it is likely to make the flavor bitter.

IN MEMORIUM

In fond remembrance of Edward Maurice Dazey, who died two years ago, May 3rd:

My darling brother passed away
Just two short years ago, today
But it seems but yesterday.

Times does not harden my love for him. But a daily thought of that terrible suffering, and that sweet smile when God called his spirit to come on High, has filled my heart with a knowledge, that he is happier in that home that has been prepared before; altho' he has left a vacancy which never can be filled. because he was the only brother. He spent eight years of suffering, with his heart broken sister, Emma Boardman.

Sirups left over from cooking fruits or from canned fruit may be saved to sweeten punches and other fruit drinks.

COMPLETE TRESTLE SOON

Poplar Bluff, May 2.—Work is nearing completion on the half mile trestle across the low section flooded at intervals by the St. Francis River near Fisk, and with completion of this project motor traffic between Poplar Bluff and Cairo will be interrupted only at rare intervals by overflows.

The S. J. Cohen Construction Co of Blytheville, Ark., has the contract for this project, costing around $95,000.

The trestle is constructed of piling driven into the ground and extending 11 feet above the ground. It is high enough to prevent the St. Francis River from cutting off traffic at any time of the year. A concrete floor is being laid on the superstructure of piling and wood framework. H. T Gossett of Memphis, engineer in charge, said the project would be completed within a short time.

The concrete highway will be used at all times except during flood stages of the St. Francis River. The trestle is 21 feet wide and is laid in blocks of concrete 21 by 16 feet, in order that repairs to any particular section may be made without disturbing the other sections. It is one of the most unique jobs of highway building in the State, engineers assert.

The Standard $1.50 per year.

Young pigs need plenty of exercise to prevent them from becoming too fat. It is often necessary to force the pigs to take exercise several times a day during the first ten days of their lives. SIKESTON DEFEATS OSCEOLA SUNDAY

11. They batted around in the process with Burk opening the inning with a triple. Big Burrus had relieved Dowdy in centerfield and collected his base knock of the afternoon scoring the Sikeston hurler. Tuffy Crain had listened to the announcers offer of 10 gallons of gas for a home run and connected for a long, hard drive good for a circuit pass.

Happy Foreman left the mound in charge of Michie, who opened his part of the inning by giving Gore a walk. The Cairoite added the last counter of the afternoon on a double by Smetzer.

Bob Mow made his first and only bid for fame in the second inning After laying down a perfect sacrifice which was played to third to cut off Bowman, Mow calmly walked from the bag. Frantic yells from the sidelines informed Mow to "beat it back", but a toss to first settled the question.

Tarver added to the comedy of errors in the eighth, when he took a short cut from first to third without going through the formality of "tagging up" second. He was out when Burrus in centerfield whipped the ball to T. Crain and Crain to Haman at first, following B. Ralph's long knock to midfield.

Even the grandstand entered into the spirit of the day and at one time was afire. Frank Van Horne and other spectators bought one bottle of Dennis Murphy's famous drink and quenched the blaze.
